CONGRESS BEGINS NEW SESSION TODAY

QUICK ACTION ON BONUS BILL IS PREDICTED

ROBINSON ASSERTS FDR WILL SIGN MEASURE

BY DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Jan 2 (AP)—Leaders of three world war veterans' groups announced tonight that a cash bonus bill with their joint indorsement will be submitted to both houses when congress convenes tomorrow.

The announcement said it will be introduced by Senator Clark (D-Mo.), and Representative Vinson (D-Ky.), and McCormack (D-Mass.). It would leave the method of financing immediate bonus payment up to the government.

A letter sent to each member of congress urging support for the measure said it would be known as the "American Legion-Veterans of Foreign Wars-Disabled American Veterans bill."

Patman Bill Backed

Other bonus developments of the day included:

A prediction by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the majority leader, that bonus legislation that will obtain "executive approval" will be passed promptly.

A meeting of 14 members of the house steering committee behind the Patman (D-Tex.), bill, at which they decided unanimously to back it "to final passage," although agreeing to modification should a majority decide to eliminate its provision for payment through $2,000,000,000 in new currency.

Announcement that Representative Scrugham (D-Nev.), would introduce a bill providing for payment in silver certificates and in certificates issued against "free and unallocated" treasury gold.

Although Patman tonight called another meeting of his "steering committee" for tomorrow, one committeeman, who spoke privately because of political considerations, said of today's agreement:

"That action just takes inflation completely out of the picture. You can count on it that any bill that passes the house will provide no specific method of payment."

PLAN NEUTRALITY BILL

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—Under the guiding hand of Secretary Hull, congressional diplomatic chiefs today drafted a new administration neutrality bill intended to restrict both trade and financial dealings with warring nations.

Details of the measure, to be introduced almost immediately in both senate and house, were meticulously guarded under an agreement reached at a protracted state department conference. Whatever the details, however, the bill probably will shape the lines for a major congressional battle.

It was reported authoritatively that the question of limiting trade with belligerents to at least a normal peace-time basis, and the problem of restricting money supplies to such nations, would be dealt with in the measure.

Strong indications were given also that the bill would seek some discretionary authority for the president in invoking embargoes against warring countries. But neither the projected extent of this power, or the depth of the trade and financial provisions were revealed.

Around the question of discretionary authority for the chief executive to embargo such war materials as oil and cotton the heaviest of the congressional fighting probably will occur.

Tommy Touhy, Doomed By Disease, Captured

Chicago, Jan. 2 (AP)—The law claimed a victory in a race with death today with the capture of Tommy Touhy, last of the "Terrible Touhy" gang, reportedly doomed from an incurable disease.

Without the firing of a shot six squads of local and federal officers, seized the 44 year old founder of the gang once known as "Al Capone's head ache," in bed at his hideaway apartment on the north side.

Palsied from his ailment—variously reported as tuberculosis and cancer---Touhy tremblingly obeyed when the officers awakened him with the command: "Come out with your hands up." He did not even raise his hand toward the pistol he had nearby.

Because of his precarious physical condition, authorities began at once to arrange for a speedy trial to guarantee he would serve some prison term before his malady takes its toll. They indicated he probably would be taken after a "show up" appearance here to Minneapolis. Federal prosecutors there said they would institute removal proceedings at once on an indictment charging he led the gang which robbed a mail truck of between $40,000 and $50,000 there two years ago this month.

For thirty months Touhy had been sought. Among the many crimes in which authorities suspected him of complicity was the $105,000 mail robbery at Charlotte, N. C., in 1933.

Regarded as one of the most dangerous mobsters who rose to affluence during the prohibition era, Touhy had been living in a $37.50 a month apartment with his family at 3130 Palmer Square, on the northwest side since October 24.

IMPORTED EGGS TO BE GRADED

Confiscation Is Penalty for Failing to Follow Regulation

Lansing, Jan. 2 (AP) — State Agricultural Commissioner James F. Thomson warned today that eggs shipped into Michigan from other states will be confiscated unless they are graded according to his department's new regulations, which became effective yesterday.

He said the grading restrictions will not be invoked against Michigan produced eggs until after a six months' educational program has been carried out to acquaint farmers with the text and value of the regulations.

Thomson said the primary purpose of the restrictions is to prevent other states from dumping inferior eggs onto the Michigan market, and to create a demand for those produced in Michigan. He said violation of the law is punishable as a misdemeanor. The order sets up four grades of eggs—fancy and grades A, B and C.

The commissioner also took occasion to emphasize that his recently announced order providing for the sale of eggs by the pound, instead of by the dozen, is mandatory only for eggs bearing the state's bonded produce label. It is expected the order's scope will be broadened later to include all eggs. Thomson issued the order under the authority of a legislative act instructing him to regulate agricultural marketing.

Two Are Killed As Train Strikes Auto

Valparaiso, Ind., Jan. 2 (AP)—David McKinney, 70 year old Albion, Mich., manufacturer and automobile dealer, and Mrs. Herman L. Brown, 76, of Parma, Mich., were killed instantly tonight when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by a train near here.

Herman L. Brown, 76, husband of Mrs. Brown, and well known orchardist, suffered serious injuries, and was given little chance for recovery. He was brought to a hospital here for treatment.

The three had started to California to spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown observed their fifty-second wedding anniversary today by starting on the long automobile trip. Two years ago they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary by traveling to California by airplane, the first time either had taken a flight.

Advertising Gains Predicted For 1936

Chicago, Jan. 2 (AP)—A gain of 20 to 25 per cent in the retail advertising lineage of the nation's newspapers in 1936 was predicted today by J. Roy Ozanne marketing consultant of the Merchandise Mart.

He said his prophecy was based on a survey of programs planned by more than 2,000 merchants.

WARDEN PLANS FOR EXECUTION

Bruno's Death Will Not Be Show; News Reels Are Barred

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 2. (AP)—Press arrangements at Bruno Richard Hauptmann's execution the week of January 13 were discussed today by Col. Mark O. Kimberling, principal keeper at New Jersey state prison, and 52 news and photographic representatives.

Declaring the execution was to be "no show" and that authorities were anxious to avoid confusion, Col. Kimberling announced witnesses at the electrocution would include representatives of the major press associations and news agencies and about 15 representatives of individual newspapers, who will act as witnesses under the law requiring a jury of 12 at each execution.

No broadcasting will be allowed on prison property.

No women will be admitted to represent any newspaper or press service at the execution.

No news reel or feature pictures will be allowed on prison property.

New York's Civil Service Law Gets Nichols' Approval

Jackson, Mich., Jan. 2 (AP)—State Rep. Haskell L. Nichols of Jackson urged Governor's Fitzgerald's civil service study commission today to consider the civil service operations in New York state in fashioning a similar plan for Michigan state employes.

Rep. Nichols, who recently returned from New York state where he examined the civil service law, sent a letter to Prof. James K. Pollock, head of the governor's study commission, recommending the New York plan as a model for Michigan.

He wrote Pollock that civil service would do three things: abolish the spoils system; make state government more efficient, and reduce the cost.

Nichols said he also favored the New York state pension plan maintained by the individual contributions of government employes.

Fund Set Aside To Take Old Machines Off The Highways

Detroit, Jan. 2 (AP)—M. E. Coyle, president of the Chevrolet Motor Co., announced today that a fund of $1,000,000 had been set aside to stimulate new and used car sales during January.

Dealers will be paid $20, said Coyle, for every old car they receive on a trade and put out of service either by junking or scrapping. The fund will also provide bonuses for salesmen who sell more used cars in January than they did in the same month of 1934.

Coyle pointed out that the special bonuses fund would take many old vehicles off the highway as wel as speed up the movement of late model used car stocks.

BUILDING PERMITS

Lansing, Jan. 2 (AP)—A final report of the city building department showed today that building permits were issued in Lansing in 1935 for a total of $1,040,185 worth of construction, the highest for a year since 1930.

ITALY ISSUES REQUEST FOR MORE FLIERS

"REGRETS" BOMBING OF SWEDISH RED CROSS UNIT

BY CHARLES H. GUPTILL
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Rome, Jan. 2 (AP)—Italy called for 5,700 volunteers for her air service tonight in what Fascists said was "the greatest aerial enlistment in history."

The air ministry asked for 1,500 pilots and 4,200 base experts.

Italy has officially expressed regret for the bombardment of a Swedish Red Cross unit, but warned Sweden against "tendentious versions of the incident," it was disclosed.

The regrets and warnings took place yesterday between Fulvio Suvich, under-secretary of state for foreign affairs, and the Swedish minister, a communique said.

New Weapons Likely

In "expressing his grief," the announcement stated, Suvich explained that the bombardment was in reprisal for an "atrocity" committed by the Ethiopians.

New and undisclosed "scientific weapons" may be pressed into Italy's fight against Ethiopia, a reliable source said today.

Italy has a vast quantity of these weapons, which thus far she has been reluctant to use, the informant said. But Ethiopian war practices may make it necessary to bring the new instruments into play, he asserted.

A violent Fascist campaign from the air, some observers predicted might come as 'punishment" for the alleged decapitation by Ethiopian warriors of Italian fliers.

(An Ethiopian communique said 28 Ethiopians were killed and two Swedish physicians wounded in the air raid.)

SWEDEN INDIGNANT

Stockholm, Sweden, Jan. 2 (AP)—Newspapers unanimously demanded tonight that this country get satisfaction from Italy for the bombing of a Swedish ambulance unit in Ethiopia after the government took under consideration the question of making a formal protest.

Indignation against the bombing, which led Tuesday to the placing of a police guard about the Italian legation, appeared to be rising.

Fresh expressions were heard after the publication of an interview with Marchese di Soragna, the Italian minister, who was quoted as saying:

"I cannot understand the aggressive and hateful atmosphere which has been aroused by the Dolo incident (bombing). Members of the Swedish ambulance unit in Ethiopia cannot expect to be as safe as if they were walking the streets of Stockholm.

"There are no means under modern war conditions for guaranteeing the non-violation of Red Cross units."

BAPTISTS RETREAT

Hillsdale, Mich., Jan. 2. (AP)—One hundred pastors of Baptist churches in Michigan were here today for their annual two-day retreat. The speakers included Dr. Jasper C. Massee, former pastor of Tremont Temple, Boston, and the Rev. W. R. Taylor, a missionary in China.

LINDBERGHS IN HOTEL SUITE

Flier and Family May Leave Liverpool Today

Liverpool, Eng., Jan. 2 (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh inquired about train schedules to Cardiff, Wales, today, but he and his wife and their son Jon remained shut up in their hotel suite for another day.

Inquiries as to trains were telephonically to a hall porter, who listed the times they could depart. But the flier made no move to go and it was believed he does not plan to leave Liverpool before tomorrow.

Three-year-old Jon, for whose security the Lindberghs are reported to have fled from America, is being entrusted to the care of no one except the parents. Mrs. Lindbergh is doing everything for the child and has not hired a nurse.

Jon has been in the hotel without his customary airings since the couple's arrival two days ago. He got a look at the fog from a hotel window this morning, while in the afternoon Col. Lindbergh took a glimpse outside from the same place.

Liverpool afternoon newspapers today did not print a line about the city's guests.

In a short statement yesterday, Col. Lindbergh said "I am very pleased at the consideration shown myself and family and I am looking forward to quiet and rest in this country."

There have been various rumors as to where the Lindberghs plan to go, including one that they will visit Llandaff, Wales, a suburb of Cardiff, in the home of J. Llewellyn Morgan, father of Aubrey Niel Morgan, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Lindbergh.

Sturgis Dentist, 73, Is Taken By Death

Sturgis, Mich., Jan. 2 (AP)—Dr. Frank G. Heald, 73 year old dentist who had practiced here since 1883, died at his home tonight after a short illness.

Dr. Heald, with 52 years of practice in the same office, was said by dental association officers to be perhaps the dean of the profession in Michigan.

He was a member of all Masonic lodges here, and of the Shrine and Consistory at Grand Rapids.

Dr. Heald is survived by his widow, and a son, Wallace Heald, an executive of a power company in Shanghai, China.

Funeral services were not arranged tonight.

Townsend Plan -- Would It Work?

The Escanaba Press today presents the most searching analysis of the Townsend old age pension proposal yet undertaken. In the accompanying exclusive article, John T. Flynn, America's outstanding writer on economic topics, concisely gives the arguments for and against this utopian plan which has enlisted the sympathy of millions throughout the country in recent months.

BY JOHN T. FLYNN
(Copyright 1936, NEA Service, Inc.)

New York, Jan. 2—The first sixty years will be the hardest when Dr. Townsend puts his plan on the statute books. After that it will be all skittles and beer—$200 a month for life. Then when Dr. Carrel and the other scientists add another score of years to our lives, we can look forward to a grand and glorious old age on the public payroll.

This pleasant utopia is sweeping the country. There are 10,385,000 people in the country who would be eligible for the pension. And they are all over 21 and can vote. So congress is going to have to face the movement and we might all just as well know precisely what it is about.

The plan is as follows: Every person, upon arriving at the age of 60, will be entitled to a pension of $200 a month from the federal government. The conditions will be (1) that he retire from work; (2) that he be free from a criminal record; (3) that he agree to spend the $200 within 30 days after receiving it each month within the United States; (4) that he does not possess an income of over $2400 a year.

Each person over 60, therefore, will draw $2400 a year. There are 10,385,000 persons over 60. But the Townsendites insist that because of the conditions, only about 8,000,000 will receive the money. This means it will cost the government $19,200,000,000 a year. This is twice the present cost of all the federal, state, coun-

Ready To Open Congress

Speaker Joseph W. Byrns

Capital Charged With Political Atmosphere

BY EDWARD J. DUFFY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Jan. 2. (AP)—The imminence of a disputatious congress and quickening maneuvers for advantage in the presidential campaign charged the capital tonight with an atmosphere of politics.

President Roosevelt's decision to speak in New York January 19, six days before Alfred E. Smith addresses the American Liberty league dinner here, reenforced the impression that the new deal plans aggressive tactics.

The occasion will be the dedication of the Theodore Roosevelt natural history museum memorial. By that time, the Republican leadership will have ripped into the president's two opening messages to congress and his Jackson day dinner speech next Wednesday.

Await Smith's Talk

He will have opportunity again to praise policies of "Teddy" Roosevelt, a cousin who in his day caused a split in the Republican party not unlike what appears threatened to some extent now for the Democrats.

Party leaders look for this talk, combined with the previous statements, to reveal fairly fully the hand to be played by the new deal at least until convention time. The severity of Smith in opposition may be considered a measure of possible party bolts.

The former New York governor is expected to discuss principles, not personalities. He agrees with the Liberty league contention that the 1932 Democratic platform has been flagrantly violated.

Huge expenditures on behalf of the conflicting viewpoints presage even more determined efforts between now and November. A financial report by the league to the house today showed it spent $390,000 in 1935, compared with almost $503,000 by the Democratic national committee and $199,000 by the Republican organization.

The Republican committee was shown to be in far better financial shape than the Democrats, with over $260,000 on hand against less than $23,000 on the other side. The Democrats, having a debt of $401,000, count heavily on the country-wide January 8 Jackson Day dinners to cut their deficit.

While the president is addressing the $50-a-plate dinner here, Mrs. Roosevelt will be honor guest at a $10-a-plate affair by the five local Young Democrats clubs. Of these charges, $45 and $7.50 respectively will go into the party chest.

Borah Gets Support

Whatever comfort the G. O. P. takes from the Democratic quarreling and financial difficulties is offset by differences in its own ranks between the old guard and Senator Borah. The prospect of a strong Borah nomination movement only today caused deferment of plans to set up a "middle-western progressive committee" to support Roosevelt.

George W. Kline, Nebraskan behind the plans, said he had found strong eastern sentiment for the Idaho senator and "many Progressive Republicans would get behind him if he is the nominee."

"If he doesn't win," he said, "they'll be for Roosevelt.' It he does win, then anti-Borah men in the party naturally must confront a decision akin to that facing anti-new deal Democrats.

PIONEER DIES AT AGE OF 101

Mrs. Alma de Puy Willett Came West in Covered Wagon

Adrian, Mich., Jan. 2 (AP)—Mrs. Alma de Puy Willett, who came to the middle west with the covered wagon pioneers, died here today at the age of 101 years. She would have been 102 years old next March 13.

Death was attributed to the infirmities of her age, although after she celebrated her first century of life, she continued much of her activities, sewing and knitting and maintaining an active interest in her church connections.

She was the mother of the late Mrs. George Miller of Detroit and spent several years in Washington while her daughter's husband was a correspendent for the Detroit News.

Born in Shamokin, Pa., March 13, 1834, one of the 10 children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph de Puy, she traveled to Sandusky, O., with her parents when she was only six years old.

Members of her family had figured for many years in shaping the history of the United States. Five of her brothers served in the Civil war, and one of them, a colonel, was killed in action.

Her grandfather, Jacob de Puy, came to this country from France with General Lafayette when the French patriot offered his services to the Colonial army.

Karen Morley, Film Star Under Knife

Hollywood, Calif., Jan. 2 (AP)—Karen Morley, blonde screen actress, underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis today.

She was stricken while working on a motion picture being filmed at the Los Angeles municipal airport.

Her condition was reported satisfactory after the operation.

PRESIDENT TO GIVE MESSAGE THIS EVENING

SCHEME FOR NIGHT MEETING CAUSES WRANGLING

(CONGRESS AT A GLANCE)
(By The Associated Press)

Neutrality: Various bills will be presented with the cleavage coming between advocates of presidential discretion and those favoring a strict congressional mandate.

Bonus: Differing bills also are expected on this perennial issue, but Democratic leaders see prospects of passing one that will meet with the president's approval; differences will arise primarily over method of payment and how much.

Appropriations—Relief: Regular supply bills for government departments will be the chief order of business; president's plans regarding further direct appropriations unknown; he will propose close to $500,000,000 for furthering public works.

Farm Relief: Will be a top issue if the supreme court throws out the AAA; administration has alternatives ready as have some Republicans.

National Defense: Customary battle over increased funds for army and navy and air defenses is expected by leaders.

Social Security: Amendments may be proposed by administration to the social security act; Democratic leaders say Townsend plan has no chance.

Politics: The usual pre-election floor speeches tinged with politics are forecast; Democrats to strive for short session to give ample time to prepare for national convention and campaigns ahead.

Ship Subsidy: A new merchant marine bill divorcing subsidies from ocean mail contracts is ready for introduction in the senate as a revision of the measure passed by the house last session; warm fight due.

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—Political fireworks shot skyward on the eve of the new session of congress tonight, illuminating issues and inquisition-bent committees that probably will command public attention up to and possibly beyond national political conventions next summer.

As President Roosevelt consulted advisors on eleventh-hour insertions and deletions in his annual message on the "state of the Union," Democrats and Republicans exchanged fiery retorts over the executive's plan to deliver it at an extraordinary joint session tomorrow night.

Bonus Issue Hot

Permanent neutrality legislation and the yearly problem of the soldiers' bonus meanwhile clearly assumed top rank among the concerns of the leaders. Newly arrived Democratic chiefs predicted, however, that an immediate payment measure would be framed to meet the president's approval.

New investigations, including one of relief administration, also were projected, adding to the long list already under way. Plans for introducing measures of great import likewise were announced, covering more elaborate old age pensions, huge appropriations for rural electrification, and farm relief.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic floor leader, was among the first today to protest against the charge by Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the Republican national committee that the president's plan to deliver his opening message at night was bringing this constitutional privilige "down to the level of a political speech."

"I think this effort to make a mountain out of a molehole is rather absurd," the Arkansas senator asserted at his first pre-congress interview.

"Of course, the hour of 9 o'clock was chosen for the purpose of giving the message full publicity," he conceded. "If anyone objects to that he has the same right to do so that others have to approve it."

MSC Has Course In Home Economics

East Lansing, Jan. 2 (AP)—A short course in home economics, designed to make work lighter and more pleasant for farm women and to teach an appreciation of the arts, will open January 6 at Michigan State college.

A short course in agricultural engineering for men will open the same day, also stressing a lightening of the burden of farm work and management. Both will continue through March 6.

The home economics course will consist of classes in foods and nutrition, child care, clothing, home management and furnishing, art appreciation, music, dramatics and physical education.

The men themselves will tell the professors what they want to study, and their desires will decide what subjects shall be taught.

Chicago Has Strange Variety Of Weather

Chicago, Jan. 2 (AP)—A rare elemental repertory—snow, rain, hail, sleet, thunder and lightning—plagued Chicagoans today.

Transportation was hampered. Motorists encountered a double handicap in slippery streets and poor visibility. Pedestrians sloshed through slush three inches deep.

A freak thunderclap brought countless telephone calls to fire and police stations.

Rain was forecast for tomorrow. An overnight low temperature of 25 degrees was predicted compared with a high of 35 today.

Fires claimed six lives in the Chicago area.

NO MURDERS

PRESIDENT TO GIVE MESSAGE THIS EVENING

can house leader, applauded the Fletcher statement, saying the party chairman had "put the thing before the public in the proper light," adding:

"Everybody knows what this means."

Fletcher, who had demanded from broadcasting companies the privilege of replying to the president's message over the same radio facilities and at the same hour on a future date, was notified during the day by M. H. Aylesworth, vice chairman of the National Broadcasting company, that such facilities would be available to the Republicans "from time to time."

Plan for Eulogies

The president of the other chain, William S. Paley of the Columbia Broadcasting system, flatly refused to accept what he termed "the principle that all broadcast activities of the government . . . are to be mathematically balanced" by time given the administration's opposition.

Speaker Byrns also hit back at Fletcher. He contended the president had a complete right to indicate when he preferred to deliver his annual message.

"While it is technically a message to the congress," Byrns said, "it is an address to all the American people and the nation has a right to hear what he has to say."

In between similar outbursts, Democratic leaders concluded plans for formally opening the second session of the 74th congress tomorrow at noon.

The senate will hold a brief session to eulogize the late Senators Long (D-La.) and Schall (R-Minn.) and to administer the oath to Schall's appointed successor, Elmer A. Benson, Farmer-Laborite. A recess then will be taken until 8:40 p. m., when the members will march in double file to the larger house chamber for the joint 9 p. m. session.

The house, because its larger membership requires more time for roll calls, necessarily will have longer opening formalities.

After swearing in four new members to fill vacancies—three more seats are still vacant—Rep. Bankhead of Alabama, the majority leader, will ask unanimous consent for the recess until night. This is required under the house rules.

If such consent is not given, Chairman O'Connor will bring in a special rule moving the recess, which would require a two-thirds vote for passage.

PROSPECTS FOR CROPS BRIGHTEN

Best Wheat Crop in 4 Years Predicted by Oklahoman

Kansas City, Jan. 2 (AP)—Snow and rain, the New Year's gift to the nation's bread-basket, boosted wheat prospects generally tonight.

The year started with light snow or rain over all the wheat belt except the extreme western parts of Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. Moisture was needed badly by a struggling crop in much of the area.

Snowfall ranged up to eight inches in northeastern Kansas and northwestern Missouri.

Harry B. Cordell, president of the Oklahoma board of agriculture, said the moisture "created the best prospects for a wheat crop in four years."

Light snow in central and eastern Nebraska brought from crop experts statements the outlook is good for wheat except in western Nebraska.

Judge Sanford said where minor children are involved in a divorce action, he will make a personal attempt to reconcile the parents in an effort to keep the home intact.

WPA RAISES HOURS TO 136

New Monthly Schedule Is Now in Effect in District

The WPA work schedule has been increased from 128 to 136 hours per month, according to a notice received by A. T. Sweet, Iron Mountain, regional WPA administrator, from the Lansing offices. Delta county comes under the provisions of the new order, which goes into effect this month.

When the WPA program was inaugurated in this district, a 140-hour month prevailed. This was reduced to 128 hours during the Delta county strike when workers demanded a 10 per cent increase in wages and the monthly work schedule reduced to 88 hours.

COUNTY AGENTS HOLD MEETING

Improvement in Dairy Industry in 1936 Considered

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 2 (AP)—A program for continuing the expansion and improvement of the dairy industry in the upper peninsula this year was discussed here today by Russell E. Horwood dairy specialist on the Michigan State college agricultural extension staff in the U. P. at the annual conference of county agricultural agents.

The conference will be concluded Friday afternoon.

Some of the salient objectives in the 1936 dairy development program, Horwood told the county workers, are: Continued testing of herds for elimination of diseased animals, continued checking of milk production through dairy herd improvement associations for the purpose of relieving herd owners of the financial burden of feeding cows that do not produce enough to pay for their keep, continued education of herd owners in modern methods of breeding and feeding cows, marketing of dairy products, housing of dairy animals and equipment of dairy barns, and continued efforts to replace scrub cattle with purebred stock with a view to getting a purebred foundation in every herd.

Throughout the day's discussions there was a note of optimism with regard to agricultural prospects in the upper peninsula for the new year.

Traffic Violators Are Sent To Jail

Detroit, Jan. 2 (AP)—Two traffic judges who assumed office here today let traffic offenders feel the full weight of their judicial hand today. The two sent 18 minor offenders who could or would not pay fines to jail along with seven drivers charged with driving while intoxicated or driving recklessly.

The sentences ranged all the way from one to 15 days.

The judges, George T. Murphy and Thomas F. Maher, said jail terms for improper parking and similar offenses will be a court rule in the future for persons who do not settle their tickets.

Bootleggers of 1935 Had Tough Sledding

BY HERBERT A. HALL
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Grand Rapids, Mich. (AP)—Violators of the internal revenue act—the post-repeal bootleggers—encountered hard sledding in the western Michigan district during 1935, although their activities were responsible for the majority of the 184 cases which came before federal judge Fred M. Raymond.

Most of the internal revenue cases involved dealings in alcohol. During the year 130 such cases were closed in the northern and southern divisions, and all but two of them resulted in convictions or pleas of guilty.

Only 19 Cases Left

"There is every indication that there has been a great decrease in the illicit traffic in alcohol," said United States Attorney Joseph M. Donnelly.

The government will start 1936 with only 19 cases pending, Donnelly said, or three more than were pending at the opening of 1935.

The high spot in the government's war against illicit liquor was reached during the November term in the southern division when indictments were returned against 17 men for conspiracy. They were charged with flooding Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and Illinois with more than 2,000 gallons of illegal alcohol a month for nearly a year.

Ghost of Dillinger

The year closed with all but one of the accused either in prison or awaiting sentence as a result of pleas of guilty. The seventeenth will be tried later this winter.

The ghost of the slain John Dillinger stalked through the records of the northern division last autumn when Mrs. Anna Steve of Sault Ste. Marie was sentenced to four months in jail for harboring Dillinger and his lieutenant, John Hamilton, when the pair fled through Michigan with G-men hot on their trail.

The trial which commanded more interest than any other involved George Foulkes, of Hartford, a former Democratic representative from the fourth Michigan district; Daniel J. Gerow, Sturgis politician, and Elmer Smith of Paw Paw, who were charged with soliciting or conspiring to "shake down" postmasters for contributions to Foulkes' campaign chest.

Bolger New Marshal

Foulkes and Gerow were convicted on the conspiracy charge. Smith and Gerow entered pleas of nolo contendere to the solicitation charge. Foulkes and Smith are serving prison terms, while Gerow, given the alternative of a fine or a prison sentence, chose the latter. Foulkes was fined in addition to the prison term, and Smith chose prison in lieu of paying a fine.

One of the first prosecutions brought under the new Sumner-Ashurst act regulating interstate shipment of prison-made goods was tried in this district. Three officials of the Minerva Manufacturing company of New York pleaded guilty to some of the counts in the indictment and paid fines. The company was accused of buying furniture produced in Michigan prisons and selling it under improper labels in New York.

A new United States marshal took office during the year. He is Edwin D. Bolger of Grand Rapids, who succeeded the veteran Martin Brown, of Leland.

Western Staters Beat Ohio Wesleyan

Kalamazoo, Mich., Jan. 2 (AP)—Western State's basketball team sprang another surprise tonight when it came from behind in the last four minutes of play to down Ohio Wesleyan, 33 to 27, giving the Wesleyans their first defeat of the season.

The victory tonight came on top of a 48 to 35 defeat the Western State squad handed Iowa, of the Big Ten, last week.

Wesleyan took the lead midway of the first half and held it until a slashing attack by the state forwards accounted for three baskets and victory to climax an otherwise closely played game.

Smith, State guard, was high scorer, with 13 points, while Clovis Stark Wesleyan forward, dominated the play of his team with his outstanding passing and floor play.

Reception Is Held At Parsonage Of Methodist Church

The Methodist parsonage was the scene of a New Year's Day reception Wednesday afternoon and evening. Rev. and Mrs. Ross Stoakes had announced that they would be pleased to receive friends from 3 to 10 p. m. and the response to this invitation proved a great source of pleasure and satisfaction to the pastor and his wife.

The many guests began to arrive shortly after 3 o'clock and continued in a steady stream throughout the afternoon and evening until more than 175 had paid the parsonage home a visit. As had been planned, the reception was informal and gave apportunity for visiting and good fellowship. Rev. and Mrs. Stoakes received their visitors as they came into the home and after introduction to other guests, the visitors were directed by assistant hostesses to the dining room where refreshments were served.

The home was lighted with candles and an illuminated Christmas tree and the glow of burning logs in the fireplace, all of which seemed to contribute materially to the welcome extended by host and hostesses and the exchange of good wishes among guests for a prosperous New Year.

Those assisting at various periods through the afternoon and evening as assistant hostesses were: Mrs. James Ferguson, Mrs. W. J. Anthony, Mrs. Henry Bathke, Mrs. Clella Cummiskey, Mrs. Mark Hanson, Mrs. A. G. Hart, Mrs. Wallace Hebert, Mrs. Marie Mattson and Mrs. Otto Paeske.

MINES BUSIER AT IRON RIVER

400 Workers to Receive Extra Time; Plan New Operations

Iron River, Mich.—More than 400 workmen for the M. A. Hanna company in the Iron River district will begin schedules of "about 20 days per month" with the opening of the Dober mine in Stambaugh for active production on a full time basis tomorrow.

A brief, formal announcement from G. M. Cannon, assistant general manager of the Hanna company, last night announced the increase in working schedules which affects men employed at the Dober, Hiawatha, Bates, and Homer mines.

At the same time, Cannon revealed acquisition by the Homer Ore company, affiliate of the Hanna company and subsidiary of National Steel corporation, of the abandoned Minckler property lease, formerly held by the Republic Steel corporation.

The Dober mine, purchased by the American Boston Mining company and operated by the Hanna company, has not produced ore since the transaction was completed May 1, 1934. Development work, however, has linked the Hiawatha and the Dober underground and the mines, in the future, will be known as Hiawatha No. 1 and Hiawatha No. 2. Operations will continue from both shafts for the present time.

No New Men

No new men will be employed at "Hiawatha No 2"; the men needed to operate it will be transferred from the Bates and Hiawatha crews.

Cannon's statement said:

"The Dober mine will start production January 1 on full time basis. The property has not produced any ore since acquired by The American Boston Mining company, a subsidiary of the National Steel corporation. The property is operated by The M. A. Hanna company.

"Development work has been carried on since the property was acquired from the Oliver Iron Mining company on May 1, 1934. A main level haulage drift is being driven from the Dober shaft 16th level, to connect with the bottom level Hiawatha shaft. General repair work has also been carried on and various improvements and changes to equipment made.

"Both the Hiawatha and Dober mines will be operated as one property in the future, and will be known as Hiawatha No. 1 and Hiawatha No. 2 mines. For the present, until development drifting is completed, hoisting and stockpiling of ore will be continued at both shafts.

Minckler Acquired

"The additional men required will be transferred from the present Bates and Hiawatha crews, and no additional men will be employed. The starting of production from the Dober mine will give all of the present employes of the Hanna mines in the district about 20 days per month each."

The Minckler property lease, dropped by the Republic Steel corporation on January 1, 1933, will be another addition to the reserve lands held by the Hanna company and its affiliates. At the present time the Minckler is undeveloped and no announcement about future plans was made.

Operation of the Dober will add another mine to the active list in the country. Ore is now being raised at the Hiawatha, Bates, Baltic, James, Forbes, and Davidson properties.

INCREASE SEEN IN CASH CROPS

Potatoes, Rutabagas, Flax Peas and Clover Fill Bill for Farmers

"The state college field forces hope to see a further increase in Upper Peninsula cash crops next year, and potatoes, rutabagas, flax, peas and clover seed seem to fill the bill," says D. L. Clanahan, of the state extension office, Marquette.

According to Mr. Clanahan, 110 Upper Peninsula growers engaged in certified seed potato production this year on 729 acres. The output has steadily increased since 1929, when about 40 growers planted 120 acres for certified purposes. In 1932 a yield of better than 300 bushels of potatoes to the acre was considered exceptional. This year 36 growers achieved that record and some for surpassed it.

Free of Diseases

"This territory is blessed with a singular freedom from potato plant diseases," said Mr. Clanahan. "That is only one factor of many which makes this a region of great promise to the industry. Conditions are ideal, and there is every prospect of steadily increasing crops."

A recent bulletin of Lake Superior Potato Growers, Inc., Marquette, whose Chicago office markets the bulk of the peninsula's annual potato crop, say that potatoes are in better demand than usual for this time of the year at the latter point. Green Mountains are quoted at $1.30 to $1.40 per hundred pounds, with most sales around $1.35. This affords the grower a fair profit, and local potatoes are moving to market freely.

Recent severe weather at many American loading points have kept supplies down at Chicago, Detroit and other large markets. Over 20 loading stations are now in commission at various points on track in the Upper Peninsula, and many points shippers are in good shape to take advantage of active market conditions. These stations, however, can accommodate only a small part of the crop, which is largely stored on owners' farms. Many farmers are apprehensive of heavy snow conditions which may block the side roads and make it impossible for them to move their potatoes to market when desired.

Upper Peninsula Sees Busy Year

"There is every reason to believe that the Upper Peninsula of Michigan is on its way up and out of the depression trough and that 1936 will be a fairly good year for the district," says John R. Merrifield, president of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, Marquette, in a recent bulletin.

"Industries in primary production, like mining and lumbering, were the last ones to feel the pinch, and the economic history of America indicates that they will be among the last ones out," continued Mr. Merrifield. "The depression hit the great manufacturing and distributing centers first of all. Back in 1931, when Detroit, Chicago and New York were in the dumps, the Upper Peninsula was still going strong. Good times may hold off with us a little longer than in some other sections, but recovery for the peninsula is now in sight and we can look forward confidently to a better share of comfort in 1936. The peninsula has taken its troubles on the chin with a minimum of grouching, and both capital and labor are to be congratulated on the improved outlook."

"Florida is enjoying a wonderful winter business," said John P. Norton of Escanaba, the bureau's vice president, who is enjoying a brief visit to that state. "There is no doubt that the public has more money to invest in travel, and the Florida situation augurs well for next summer's tourist patronage in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan. I believe it will be very satisfactory and we ought to be planning right now to take proper care of it."

Rock's Civil War Veteran 94 Years Old

Rock, Mich., Jan. 2—To Edward Rabideau, highly respected resident of Rock and one of the few remaining surviving veterans of the Civil war in the Upper Peninsula, January 1 has a double significance. It not only marks the arrival of a new year but it marks the anniversary of his birth.

Rock's resident Number One yesterday celebrated his 94th birthday anniversary in a quiet manner at the home of his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Rabideau. During the past few years, winter months have been an increasing burden upon him since his advanced age confines him to the house most of the time. During the summer, the aged veteran likes to spend most of the time out of doors, splitting wood and doing other tasks about the house.

Mr. Rabideau was born in Canada, January 1, 1842, and came to the United States when still a young man. On February 1, 1862, he enlisted with the 14th Regiment, Wisconsin Veteran Infantry, Company F, under Captain Royan and Colonel Ward at Green Bay.

He saw active service in the siege of Vicksburg, battle of Mobile Bay, Kenesaw Mountain, Pittsburgh Landing and Fort McAllister. He was honorably discharged at Mobile, Alabama, October 9, 1865.

Mr. Rabideau's two brothers, his father-in-law and a brother-in-law were also veterans of the Civil war but all have passed away many years ago. The local veteran tells of how his brother, Louis, was shot and wounded directly behind him on the march and he did not learn of his brother's injuries until the war was over when they met again.

Mr. Rabideau's father died at the age of 105 and his mother at 99, and he expects to reach the century mark.

The nation at large votes slightly over 3 to 2 against the New Deal in the Literary Digest poll, according to the latest tabulation which includes returns from all forty-eight states for the first time.

The total of 1,370,774 ballots tallied on the question: "Do you now approve the acts and policies of the Roosevelt New Deal to date?" shows 541,845 "yes" votes, or 39.53 per cent, to 828,929 "no" votes, or 60.47 per cent.

The present percentage of the balloting against the New Deal compares with 58.51 of last week's returns, an increase of 1.96 points adverse to the New Deal.

The current issue of the Literary Digest in which the latest poll statistics appear, states that thirty-six states are registering majorities against the administration's policies.

The twelve states which are voting in support of Roosevelt's policies include Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah and Virginia, all of which except Utah are southern or border states.

The states which are shown voting against the New Deal represent 399 electoral votes, which is a little over three-fourths of the electoral college total of 531 votes.

In a similar poll on the New Deal which was conducted by the Literary Digest in the spring of 1934, to the same names as nearly as possible, 61.15 per cent of the total participants were in favor of the New Deal and Vermont was the only one of the forty-eight states which gave a majority against the president's acts and policies.

In his 1932 election President Roosevelt captured all states except Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania and Vermont.

O'Hara Seeks Reelection

AUDITOR General John J. O'Hara has indicated that he will seek reelection next fall.

This development will be viewed with much satisfaction by Republicans and independent voters of the Upper Peninsula, who have found in the former Menominee attorney a public servant who has been always solicitous of the welfare of this northern part of the state.

Since Auditor General O'Hara has been down in Lansing, he has taken much interest in the Upper Peninsula's highway improvement program. He is chairman of the special highway committee of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau and a member of the highway committee of the State Administrative Board.

The auditor general's long experience in business and the legal profession makes him admirably suited to fill the position made vacant by the death of John K. Stack Jr. of Escanaba, who carried on the tradition for honesty and economy in government set by Oramel B. Fuller of Ford River.

The Upper Peninsula has demonstrated that it is capable of producing strong and able men to serve in positions of responsibility at the state capitol.

Mining Is Coming Back

THE outlook for Upper Peninsula mining is certainly the best in years. An industry which produces merchandise valued at $80,000,000 in a normal year is certainly not to be sneezed at, and whether it is healthy or sick is a matter of concern not only to Upper Michigan, but to the entire country.

The opinion of the best posted men in the industry seems to be that 1936 will show an appreciable increase in the production of copper and iron ores and, barring unforeseen contingencies, that 1937 may bring a gratifying return to approximately normalcy of output. That mining employment conditions will approach those of other days can hardly be hoped for, although there are elements of good cheer in the prospect which give eventual promise of steady work for far more men than seemed possible two or three years ago.

There are, of course, those who contend that this great local industry faces collapse because the mines are approaching exhaustion. It is true that much rich ore has disappeared, and that it can never be replaced, but the outlook is by no means discouraging. There are several hundred thousand acres of mineral bearing formations in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, and it is authoritatively stated that not over ten per cent of the potential area has ever been systematically prospected. That other finds will be made is not only possible but probable. The bounty of nature in this favored region is past all reckoning, and no one can say with certitude that the last rich strike has been made.

Iron and copper have played and will continue to play their leading part in the well-being of upper Michigan, and there is at least a fair chance that gold mining will have its inning before the last curtain descends on the scene. It is too early to venture even a modest prediction on the outcome. Favorable points are the presence of rock formations, resembling in many particulars those of successful Canadian gold mines, and the proximity of the iron ranges. It has been demonstrated throughout the world that the richest gold mines are found in iron-banded rocks, and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan may prove to be no exception to the rule.

A great amount of work must be done and months consumed before the search for gold here can be lifted out of the prospecting stage, but enough information has been accumulated to amply warrant the courage and enterprise of gold seekers who are now fairly embarked on the venture in this territory. They deserve the good wishes and commendation of the entire district.

Much of the data which they are now accumulating at considerable expense would have been available ere this, if the geological division of the Michigan Conservation Department had been permitted to carry out its plans for a field survey in the mineralized districts of the state. On more than one occasion the division's request for funds for the purpose has been turned down by the legislature. No other possible appropriation gives greater promise of rich returns than this, and the peninsula could well get behind a movement to bring such a survey to fruition. That it would be conducted by the above agency would be guarantee enough that the work would be well done and no chances overlooked.

There is continued good feeling toward the Michigan College of Mining and Technology at Houghton, and this is pleasing to all people of good will. The college has paid for itself over and over in the results of research work alone, and it will continue to be a potent factor in lengthening the life of upper peninsula mining and insuring steady returns. Michigan is proud of its great mining school and the latter's great accomplishments. The institution is a bright light in the mining world and is destined to reach still greater heights of success.

As 1936 comes in, Michigan mining is taking a fresh hold with new vigor. With no more than an even break, it is prepared to show the world that it is a long way from being down and out.

Where's the Griffon?

SOMETHING is wrong somewhere.

Several months have passed and we have not heard or read anything about the finding of the hulk of La Salle's sailing ship, the Griffon, which disappeared while on a Great Lakes voyage 256 years ago.

The Griffon was built near Niagara Falls early in 1679 by Rene Robert Cavalier, Sieur de La Salle, to be used in the quest for a northwest passage to the Pacific and to China. It was also to be used in extending the fur trade and missionary work of the Jesuits.

Started the winter of 1678-9 the 45-ton vessel was completed in the summer, and on August 7, 1679, the Griffon set forth never to return, carrying besides La Salle, Henri de Tonty, an Italian officer of high standing, and Louis Hennepin, a Recollect missionary. She passed the straits at Detroit and kept on northward through Lake Huron to anchor at St. Ignace, the only point of importance at that time west of Montreal.

At St. Ignace, the voyageurs visited the chapel and house of the Jesuits, the Indian villages in the vicinity, and made a careful inspection of the country. Before leaving La Salle founded a fort, the first military establishment in the Northwest.

The ship then continued on its way along the north shore of Lake Michigan to Green Bay (Bay des Puants), where the French had already collected a large quantity of valuable furs. These were loaded into the Griffon and she headed back in care of La Salle's pilot, Lucas, and 14 French sailors.

Called by the Indians the "floating fort" the Griffon set sail on her first and last downboard cruise Sept. 18, 1679. She was last seen in heavy weather while passing St. Ignace and Mackinac island. La Salle was not aboard. He and Father Hennepin were descending the Illinois river and preparing to build the famous Fort Grevecoeur, which means "heartbreak." When La Salle finally reached Niagara Falls by crossing the Lower Peninsula of Michigan he learned not only of the Griffon's disappearance but of the loss of a ship from France carrying 20,000 francs' worth of trading supplies.

News of the discovery of relics of the Griffon is announced at irregular intervals, but historians never appear satisfied that the right find has been made. The Griffon stories may revive, however, when construction work is started on the Straits of Mackinac bridge project.

Big Resort Year Seen

SOME Michigan resorts reported in 1935 they enjoyed the best business since 1929, according to Hugh J. Gray, secretary-manager of the West Michigan Tourist and Resort association, who predicts that 1936 will be even better.

The Upper Peninsula is hopeful that next year will see a sizable increase in tourist traffic. This northern part of the state should cash in next summer on the tremendous amount of publicity that has been given to the movements to establish a national park on Isle Royale and a state park at the Tahquamenon Falls. Advertising given to Mackinac Island and other scenic and historical attractions in the Upper Peninsula also should bring returns next season.

Again the warning should be sounded to the Upper Peninsula to make preparations now for the tourist season. There is still much improvement that can be made in accommodations and services for vacationists.

Congressman Hook of Ironwood has not given up the idea of a "complete investigation" of the activities of William Haber, state relief administrator, Walter M. Berry, the relief boss in the Upper Peninsula, and Bert B. Balkema, an assistant to the WPA administrator who has headquarters at Iron Mountain. Leastwise that's the impression from dispatches emanating in Washington. Hook says he will ask the president for a complete hearing of the alleged Republican maneuvering in the relief administration in Upper Michigan, and particularly in the twelfth district.

Death of William P. Belden, general counsel for the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company, is a reminder of the Upper Peninsula's most famous trial. He defended the late George Newett of Ishpeming in the libel suit brought by Theodore Roosevelt against Newett. An interesting slant in connection with that trial was the reaction of a Republican newspaperman of the Peninsula who attended the trial. He was an ardent admirer of Theodore Roosevelt until the trial. After that, he thoroughly disliked the man.

Good mining news comes from the Iron River district. E. J. Oswald, superintendent of the Republican Steel corporation's operations there, announces 50 additional men will be employed at the Tobin mine, just about doubling the pay roll. The miners will be employed on a five-day schedule which, by the way, may be accepted as the maximum for any iron mine. The old six-day schedule undoubtedly is a thing of the past.

Yost, athletic director of the state university, visited the Peninsula and saw some ski riders perform. He remarked that it takes "intestinal fortitude" to make the leaps they do. Bietila has plenty of that, his admirers are ready to suggest.

Carl F. Winkler of Houghton, president of the Upper Peninsula Road Builders association, says $600,000 will be asked as supplementary aid to compensate northern counties for high costs in snow removal. That's a little more than an average of $12,000 for each of the 49 counties. Upper Peninsula counties would be apportioned more than some of the northern counties in the Lower Peninsula, however, because the snowfall is heavier above the Straits. In the last eight years Gogebic county, for example, has had an average snowfall of 146.8 inches. The county had as little as 82.1 inches in the winter of 1931-32 and as much as 207.9 inches in the winter of 1927-28.

Your Nation's Affairs

BY ERNEST MINOR PATTERSON

While there is no immediate fear of so fantastic a situation as developed in Germany during the disastrous inflation of that country where 5,000,000,000,000 mark luncheons and 200,000,000,000 mark tips were usual, there is nevertheless serious reason for believing that prices may rise so high in this country as to cause a great amount of trouble.

At present our banks have about $3,000,000,000 of "excess reserves." Partly because of the presence of this vast stock of gold they have these unutilized reserves upon which they can base a great increase of lending, conservatively estimated at $30,000,000,000. Such a credit growth as this would undoubtedly raise prices far too much for our comfort and would at the same time lead to much reckless speculation. Such advances have always brought later collapse with a large amount of unemployment and other forms of distress so familiar to us since 1929.

As a result many responsible people are studying the possibility of preventing this kind of boom or of checking it if it goes too far. But nowhere among experienced experts is there any confidence that control is possible. Instead, these experts gravely doubt our ability to keep the situation in hand. The United States is in a very awkward position.

It is easy to suggest that we export the gold since we have so much of it. But how? One way would be to send it abroad in exchange for something else. But for what? If commodities from other countries should come in return for the gold that goes out, there would be a growth in the protests from those who do not want Americans to buy foreign goods. Foreign stocks and bonds might be taken but who is ready to buy them? And even if they could be sold to American investors, our troubles would be still greater in the future because, soon or late, foreigners would have to pay us dividends and interest, which would mean taking either gold or commodities.

Even if we gave it away there would probably be only a short delay until it would return. The same reasons that have caused it to come to us during the last twenty years still exist, changing slightly as the years pass, but not disappearing.

These reasons are two in number. One is that from time to time foreigners believe that their funds will be safer here than in their own countries. The common way of expressing this is to say that there is a "flight of capital" to the United States. It is likely that there has been a great deal of this in 1935.

The second reason is that we are now a nation of creditors. People abroad owe us more than we owe them. To the extent that they meet their obligations we must take something in payment. Thus far, we have imposed various obstacles to the receipt of commodities, using tariffs and other devices for the purpose. Since the commodities cannot come, gold is shipped.

Until these two reasons for gold imports disappear, gold will continue to come in, provided foreign countries will release it. In the meantime, we have more than $10,000,000,000 of it and our banks have over $3,000,000,000 of excess reserves.

It appears that we have a very large bear by the tail.

"KEEP IT QUIET," by Richard Hull (Putnam); "DEAD MAN MANOR," by Valentine Williams (Houghton Mifflin).

ALTHOUGH by this time most New Year resolutions must have been made, it will do no harm to suggest another one. It is to be less snobbish about books.

Musicians have no difficulty unbending, perhaps not so far as trashy dance music, but at least to the point of enjoying the oily melodies of Verdi, the gay waltzes of the Strausses. First rate painters enjoy caricature once in a while and really clever murderers like bridge, sometimes. But readers, the serious kind, had as soon be caught stealing from a poor box as to confess that they read for entertainment.

It's good to read for entertainment, and Richard Hull's "Keep It Quiet" is a good book to begin the habit with. It's not so funny as "The Murder of My Aunt," but it will do quite well. Mr. Hull is writing about the devilish goings on in the Whitehall club. Unlike some mystery practitioners, he treats his locale as a real place. He introduces the reader to many of the members, to the staff (especially Ford, the futile manager), to the meditations of the wine committee.

The result of this is that when the Whitehall's two worst bores die in the same chair (at different times, to be sure) the reader understands perfectly why everybody feels just as they do feel. The deaths are regrettable, oh, dear, yes. But the prime consideration is keeping the scandal out of the press. Characterization is good in Mr. Hull's book, and the Whitehall becomes an actual place. It's no disgrace to read "Keep It Quiet," and if you remove the dust jacket nobody will know it's a mystery, anyway.

Or perhaps you're a mystery reader who needs no encouragement, and prefers less subtle fodder. If so, Valentine Williams has a new one called "Dead Man Manor," a worthy sequel to a long line of worthy yarns. Mr. Treadwell is a delightful detective, and the Canadian setting is not too threadbare.

New York Column

BY JAMES B. RESTON

NEW YORK—We will start, we said, along the park, and move over to Broadway and then south as the night wears on. Tonight we will go sleepless and see the town.

So we went to the Continental room of the St. Moritz for dinner. Here English is the only foreign language. Each employe of the hotel speaks several European languages and the guests babble away indistinguishably.

The club differs very little in appearance from a dozen others in town: A great table laden with French pastry and fruit on the left as you enter; small white tables in crescent shape around the dance floor; another tier of tables with soft yellow lights glimmering up above. There is a small stage with a semi-circular proscenium, draped in a gorgeous white satin curtain.

A FAT waiter with a heavy chain stretched across his chest bows around from table to table, suggesting wines to go with the food. A Turk, in full native raiment, wheels about brewing Turkish coffee for the guests. Soup is served out of great pot-bellied tureens, which are rolled to your table; the food is brought in spluttering over silver oil lamps.

Half-way through dinner the lights fade and the room is lit only by the scores of little table lamps. The baby spots flash around the room, gleaming off the silver ceiling and the slick floor. There is a ballet dance team, a quartet, a wicked little French can-can dance; then a group of gypsy singers.

In each of these shows there seems always to be one person who can transform the place. In this, it was one of these gypsies, a tremendous fellow with a wild crying voice and a gust of spirit which stopped the guests at their eating.

SO WE went off toward Seventh avenue, leaning against the bitter wind; and cut over to Broadway to the Winter Garden for the second act of At Home Abroad. And there we decided that Reginald Gardiner almost steals the show from Bee Lillie. So back stage after the performance and stood marvelling at the stage hands whisking sets about like handbags.

Soon the stage was bare. The chorus girls were picked up at the door. Ethel Waters was the first gone, not even taking time to remove her makeup. Eleanor Powell and young Gardiner dashed off to the Montmartre for supper.

Broadway was merely getting awake now. We went over to the newsreel theater on the Square; then out and up to Jack and Charlie's at No. 21, where the smoke clouded the candlelight and we fell into a long involved argument and were too comfortable to move on.

Late then over to the east side. The streets are deserted away from Broadway. And so to bed wondering why we hadn't thought of this bed idea hours before.

Business is recovering today in spite of the New Deal. If it were not for the supreme court, we today would be living under an autocracy.

You might as well expect a rattlesnake not to bite as to expect a Communist to be good.

THIS RUSHING OFF

If I to town have got to go,
A day ahead I have to know,
An opportoonity affordin'
So I c'n make my plans accordin'.
I don't believe in rushing to
A place the way the women do.
The things I need I want to find me
And not leave anything behind me.

A woman says, "Let's go today,"
But, if you do, and go that way,
Like some young colt a-cuttin' capers,
You'll find you went and left the papers,
You'll find you didn't take the deed,
Or maybe somethin' else you need
Some pants to buy or cash to borrow,
And have to go ag'in tomorrow.

That is, you would. What makes me sore
In town, when you are huntin' for
A thing, she says, "I didn't read it,
But here it is, and thought you'd need it."
'Twould save a lot of fuss if she
Would let a fellah's papers be.
I always know just where I set it,
A thing, and I could go and get it.

News Behind The News

BY PAL MALLON

Paul Mallon

Washington, Jan. 2.—No detective work is needed to find out the controlling force behind this session of congress. It is politics, and more politics. You can see it behind nearly every advance plan, act and speech. The capitol atmosphere has rarely been so highly surcharged with it at the opening of a session.

The election is yet 10 months off for most people, but not for the congressmen. For them it is tomorrow and tomorrow, providing their last chance to polish up their records and save their skins.

Democrats, Republicans, Farmer-Laborites and what-nots were busily at it long before the bell was to call them to their appointed places. They will be at it until the bell sends them home about five months hence.

—BONUS SURGE—

You may have wondered, for instance, why there is all this rush to get the bonus passed in such a hurry at the opening of the session.

The answer to that is a lot of congressional leaders from the good old solid South are a little worried about their spring primaries. They stood with their President last time against the inflationary bonus. It was their duty as leaders to do so, but it was not very popular with the organized veterans in their districts. Some actually feel they may be mowed down in the primaries unless they get to cast a vote for the bonus first. The others would like to, so as not to run any more chances than necessary.

It is understood on the inside that the White House fully appreciates this situation.

—NEUTRALITY—

Some of the same symptoms are less noticeable behind the whooping up of the neutrality issue. That is something everyone can be for. More than one senator says his incoming mail is heavier on that subject than on the Townsend plan. Also it is a god subject on which to split with the President, because the split is only over methods and not on purposes. The impending roasting of J. P. Morgan, et al, on the senatorial split will add further sauce for the ganders. This situation also is fully appreciated.

—DUCKING—

To give you a further hint of the intensity of the underlying situation:

A certain mid-west Republican congressman felt constrained to announce some weeks back that he would vote for the Townsend plan. What constrained him was the special election in Michigan. At least he made his announcement about that time, following a shower of pro-Townsend letters from his own constituents.

Since then, the anti-Townsend citizens of his district have been shouting at him through the mails. They were not organized, and he did not know there were so many of them.

This legislative gentlemen is therefore now constrained to deny that he was ever really for the Townsend plan. He is saying he merely agreed to vote for it in the House "so it could go to the Senate for a thorough discussion."

There will be more of that.

—TESTING—

Even now, many congressmen have coyly hoisted their saliva-tipped fingers to find out which way this Townsend breeze is going. This is why Dr. Townsend's poll of congress has not progressed more swiftly. His inquisitive letter has been put on the bottom of the pile of unanswered mail on many a congressional desk.

The clever Townsend pressure boys apparently have found that out, and have made a list of tardy respondents. At least, mail bags of threats and abuse have been raining on the tardy ones lately.

Most of the quick-jumpers have already made up their minds. A senator, who fled from his midwestern home a few weeks ago in the face of the Townsend storm, recently turned and faced it with a public statement. Such reasonable analytical speeches as that of Congressman Lea of California (at Chico, December 12) are having an effect.

—TENANTS—

Another juicy morsel is the Bankhead billion-dollar farm tenant bill. That would help a lot of congressmen in spots down South where the Talmadge and the Huey Long hangover groups are making trouble. At least this is a strong consideration behind it. The bill passed the Senate last session, but got stuck in the house when Representative Bankhead was ill and at home. He is on the job now.

—NOTES—

The Republicans are not overlooking their campaign opportunities either. Republican Leader Snell has been talking up the economy issue lately within his small flock. It is generally understood that they will take a strong economy stand in the House, not exactly unmindful of the coming campaign.

V.-P. Garner is chipper and still wears rubber heels. He is handling the session for the president, not in any way conflicting, of course, with the nominal leaders, who are his friends. It was Garner who once told a group of leaders, who informed him a certain cabinet officer was telling congressmen how the President wanted them to vote: "Why, he's just a boy. Give him a message to take back to the President and sent him on his way."

It was a congressional leader who thought up the idea of having Mr. Roosevelt deliver his opening message to Congress at night, so all could hear on the radio. Of course, he did not have the campaign in mind at all.

PESHTIGO REEF HAS NEW LIGHT

Keeper-Less House to Take Place of Lightship

BY PAUL MAY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 2.—A lighthouse fully equipped with light, fog signal, fog bell and radio-beacon, yet without any keepers, will begin operation in Green Bay when navigation opens in the spring of 1936, it was learned today at the Bureau of Lighthouses.

Peshtigo Reef Lighthouse, construction of which has just been completed, will be automatically operated, so that no one will remain in attendance. Functions which must be exercised at irregular intervals, such as blowing the fog signal, fog operation of the radiobeacon, and correcting the clocks, will be done by radio control. The lighthouse at Sherwood Point, eight miles from the reef, will be the control station.

Electric Fog Bell

The light in the tower of the lighthouse and the electric fog bell will operate automatically, independent of radio control. Current for the light will be supplied by a storage battery kept charged by generators driven by gasoline engines. The flashing characteristic of this light will be controlled by motor-driven revolving contacts.

Operating independently of every other piece of equipment in the lighthouse, the electric fog bell will strike continuously, one stroke every 20 seconds.

The other signalling devices, the radiobeacon and the compressed air fog signals, will be radio controlled from shore. When a fog comes up, the lighthouse keeper at Sherwood Point will start the fog signals at Peshtigo Reef. When he has given the order for operation of the signals, he can tell by listening to automatic radio signals that the order is being executed by the mechanical crew at the reef.

Replaces Lightship

Peshtigo Reef Lighthouse is a a new station just built to replace a lightship which has occupied this site since 1906. The new lighthouse, which was constructed on a submarine site, is of modern design, made of steel and concrete and equipped with the latest types of signalling apparatus.

Only two other stations in the United States, the lighthouse at Fourteen Foot Shoal, near the Straits of Mackinac, and the Lake St. Clair Lightship, are operated entirely without crew.

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

HIGHWAY US-41 DISPUTE ENDS

Way Is Opened for Work on Highway North of Talbot

Settlement of a dispute between 10 land owners between Talbot and Carney and the State Highway Department, in connection with the necessity of rerouting Highway US-41 over their property, was arrived at yesterday, according to Kenneth O. Doyle, Menominee, attorney for the land owners.

The entire proposed relocation is now open for construction and nothing remains to interfere with the contractors working on the project. For a time the work was held up in the area pending settlement of the dispute.

Necessity Upheld

Condemnation proceedings were brought by the State Highway Department last fall to take the several parcels of land through farms for the relocation. At a hearing before Circuit Court Commissioner Alger W. Strom on the question of necessity in relocation of Highway US-41, an order was made that necessity existed. Two questions were involved in the proceedings One was whether the necessity existed and the other the question of damages to be awarded the property owners.

After Commissioner Strom's order determining the necessity existed the land owners appealed to circuit court for a revue of the legality of the procedure before Strom, contending in a rehearing granted by Judge Frank A. Bell that no competent evidence of necessity was offered before the commissioner. The circuit court on December 4 filed a written opinion upholding the necessity established by Strom.

Settlement Reached

Through their attorney, Mr. Doyle, the land owners then took preliminary steps in filing an application with the Supreme Court for permission to appeal for a review of Judge Bell's order. An appeal was set for hearing on December 30, and on that date the landowners with the exception of three came to agree with the Highway Commission, and made and executed releases.

Three land owners have not reached an agreement as to the amount of damages to be awarded for their property, and are to have the question settled through regular condemnation proceedings. Commissioners will be appointed later by probate court to represent both parties, and the commissioners will determine the damages to be awarded.

Disposition of their claims will not prevent contractors continuing work on the project.

CHAPTER XXXVII

Scott sat in his office, his blond head in his hands. He did not hear the door open, and he flushed with embarrassment when Dr. Osborne spoke.

"Don't mind me, Scott," the older man said, placing a compassionate hand on Scott's shoulder. "I was just wondering if you wouldn't join Mrs. Osborne and me. We are planning to spend the day on the river. Dr. and Mrs. Willoughby are coming along, too."

Scott thanked him, suspecting the trip had been arranged for him. It would be a relief to get away from town, to put distance between himself and that business going on at the courthouse.

Dr. Osborne said, "You're too good a doctor, Scott, not to know there's hope as long as there's life."

Scott shook his head grimly. "You're too good not to know that there's a time when hoping doesn't help much."

Dr. Osborne sighed and left the room. He was devoted to Scott. If he had had a son, he would have wanted him to be exactly like this straight-thinking boy. Dr. Osborne could scarcely have been more troubled today if Scott had been his own boy.

So many times Scott had gone over his battleground. Always the longing to see Dona had been combatted when he remembered the words of her note, "Don't ask me to come back, Scott. I don't want to—not ever."

Burning resentment carried him over the first days of their separation. Then had come Mrs. Cameron's letter commending him for philosophically accepting Dana's decision. "Like all southern girls," she had written, "Dana is impulsive and sentimental. If she hadn't been, she would never have married you. She might return to you for the same reasons. But she doesn't want to. I believe Dana is facing a happier life, and I hope you won't interfere."

Around those two notes Scott had built a reserve of strength and determination to carry him through the lonely days and nights. There were many such days and nights behind him—and more ahead. He faced them calmly but with bitterness in his heart.

About the time Scott, from a deep chair on the Osbornes' launch, was watching the shore line recede, Dana was on her way to the courthouse.

It was like a dream, mounting the wide, worn steps of the cold, gray building. There was a dreadful, chilled feeling in her heart that matched her surroundings. How terrible to be coming to this solemn place, concerned with so much unhappiness and despair. Leaving her gay romance and happiness forever behind.

The thin young man with the thick glasses, her attorney, was taking over her life and Scott's. A word from that fussy little fat man yonder would bring an end to their marriage.

"Sit down, dear," Aunt Ellen whispered. "You look pale." Dana smiled at her. Aunt Ellen seemed out of place in this room with its white walls and stiff furniture,

"I'm not going to faint," Dana said. "Don't worry, Aunt Ellen."

"Faint?" Mrs. Cameron sat down heavily, giving her granddaughter a sharp look that was like a stimulant. "What nonsense!"

"I don't believe Scott will show up," Mrs. Cameron continued.

"Do you think he might?" Dana's voice was suddenly alive.

"I think it would be very foolish if he did. There's no reason for him to come unless he intends to contest the case—and he doesn't. Soon now, both of you silly children will be free."

Dana stared out the window. All she could see was another wing of the building.

A door opened, and a swift tide of color flooded Dana's face. But it was not Scott in the doorway—only a court employe bringing papers to the judge.

The judge was speaking to Dana now. His eyes, behind his glasses looked kind. They probed hers keenly. "You're sure this divorce is what you want, child?"

For a wild instant Dana wanted to cry out, "I don't want it at all but my husband does." Her lawyer interposed quickly, "There's nothing else she could do, your honor. The man has been cold and unfeeling."

"Yes, yes," the judge agreed. Dana suspected he had gone over the same procedure so many times that he was tremendously wearied by it all.

It was over quickly, and they were walking out into the sunshine again. The young lawyer walked with Dana. She wished he wouldn't; he wasn't to blame for this, yet she hated him.

The lawyer was thinking that Dana was a darned pretty girl and her husband had been a fool to let her slip away from him. He felt sure there was another man in the offing. There generally was if women were pretty and young.

Mrs. Stanley was a trifle pale, and she didn't look happy. Women were like that. Give them what they wanted and they acted as though the world was down about their ears. He tucked Dana's arm through his protectingly, and began to talk in a cheerful tone. Dana withdrew her arm and gave him a look that was not at all flattering.

"Thank you, Mr. Slater," Mrs. Cameron said, placing her hands firmly on the wheel of the outdated automobile. "Everything went off without any embarrassment."

Nancy turned from the front seat as the car moved off. "Dana looks as happy as if she had received a death sentence," she commented dryly.

"It's natural," Mrs. Cameron snapped. "Divorces aren't anything to cheer about. But they are necessary sometimes." Mrs. Cameron looked as though she had been in a battle. There were tired lines in her face, but the light of victory shone in her eyes.

Aunt Ellen had withdrawn into her shell again. Dana knew her aunt's sympathies had swayed weakly from one side to the other. Aunt Ellen would have supported Scott—only he hadn't wanted any support. If he had—

She refused to complete the thought. What was the use of might-have-beens, now that the legal bonds had been broken?

A box of flowers was waiting for Dana. Sarah brought it to her, smiling broadly.

"Well!" Mrs. Cameron's voice sang out. "Somebody's mighty thoughtful."

Dana lifted the mass of white blossoms from the box. On the card Ronnie had written, "My memories of you are white moments in dull gray days. May I see you tonight?"

"Ronnie wants to come tonight," Dana said. Ronnie was sweet and the thought of his devotion helped her, too, on this grayest of days.

"You'll let him come," Mrs. Cameron urged. "You'll never be any freer than you are now. You might stay away from public places. Or it might be best to stay at home and talk."

Mrs. Cameron was thinking, "In my day, talking in a parlor got a girl farther along with a man than gallivanting around the country in a car and dancing all night. Men never have time to concentrate on a girl these days."

Dana said, "I'm rather tired—"

"Don't give Ronnie the impression you're staying home grieving for a man who wouldn't give you the satisfaction of refusing to come back to him. Scott's probably somewhere celebrating his freedom."

"You never did see any good in Scott," Dana cried out in sudden passion. She added, "I won't see Ronnie tonight. I don't want to. I should think you'd know I couldn't. Doesn't a divorce mean any more to you than that?"

Mrs. Cameron didn't answer. When Dana was in such a mood it was better not to. And no doubt the child's nerves were on edge.

When the afternoon newspaper arrived Mrs. Cameron opened it and searched the pages. There was a small item about the divorce, inconspicuously placed.

And here was something else in the columns that met Mrs. Cameron's eyes. "Dana," she called. "Come here!"

Dana came to the door.

"Listen to this," Mrs. Cameron said, satisfaction in her tone. Aloud she read, "Dr. Scott Stanley, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Osborne, and a group of friends spent the day on the river. The party left this morning on the Osbornes' yacht, Windflower, which was recently redecorated and which will be the setting for many yachting parties this summer."

Mrs. Cameron looked up. Dana's face was white, but two red spots burned in her cheeks. There was fire in her eyes, too. Her voice shook as she spoke. "You're right, Grandmother," she said. "You always are. I'll call Ronnie right now."

"Wait until he calls you," her grandmother said doubtfully. "That would be nicer, don't you think?"

"But I'm not nice any more," Dana said. "I'm a divorced woman. Anyway, do you think I want Scott to imagine I care!"

Bewildered, Mrs. Cameron heard Dana's voice a moment later, "I want you to come, Ronnie. Let's go places and do things. I want to be amused."

CHAPTER XXXVIII

Late summer drifted into early fall. Leaves turned from green to gold, and a brisk wind, rustling tall branches, tossed colorful little patches at Dana's feet.

She was walking swiftly, a jaunty little hat tipped slightly at the side of her head. The hat was brown, like her dress. Strands of chestnut hair were whipped loose and blew against her cheek.

She heard steps behind her and a deep masculine voice called, "Are you practicing for a sprinting marathon?"

Dana whirled. "Ronnie, Ronnie!"

"The same, in person. What a chase you have led me! Your grandmother said you were on your way to the library, with about a five-minute start. Say—the way you travel! People fell out of their cars watching me being outdistanced by a woman."

He was holding her hands tightly, gazing into her eyes, oblivious of curious on-lookers on the busy street.

Dana said, "Oh, Ronnie, I'm glad you're back!" The words came in a little rush.

"Honestly, Dana? You wouldn't fool me?" Ronnie's hands tightened on hers.

"I wouldn't fool you. Don't ever go chasing off around the world again."

"Never expect to—alone," Ronnie said.

There was something significant in his voice. Something significant, too, in the way he was looking at her, smiling.

She said quickly, "Grace and Bill are having a party out at their lodge on the lake. She heard you were coming today—I don't know how—and asked me if I could inveigle you to come along."

"I'm inveigled," Ronnie smiled. "That is, if you're going. I suppose Grace heard from Paula that

WANT U. S. TO STAY NEUTRAL

But Keeping Out of War Presents Many Perplexities

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright, 1936, Escanaba Daily Press)

Washington, Jan. 2.—Neutrality that leads to American participation in war, or neutrality that really keeps America out of war—these are the alternatives of policy between which congress is about to attempt to choose by writing laws that presumably will accomplish a peace objective.

So anxious are the American people to avoid another entanglement in a European war that members of congress sponsoring various neutrality proposals think all they have to do is to charge that American entry into the world war was due entirely to our own policy and the public will accept the thesis.

Danger in Proposals

Actually, there is more danger of dragging America into war by some of the meddlesome proposals now being urged upon congress than there were in any of the various suggestions made in the period between 1914 and 1917.

The evidence on what happened at that time has been splendidly summarized in a new book by Professor Charles Seymour, of Yale, who was editor of Colonel House's memoirs. Mr. Seymour makes it plain that unrestricted submarine warfare was something the Germans decided upon and was no invention or device contrived by President Wilson.

Why the German government determined to risk antagonizing America by proclaiming submarine attacks on innocent persons traveling at sea is something the German historians now ascribe to matters of strategy in the German navy, whose chieftains believed the policy was worth the risk. Nobody has come forth as yet in congress with any proposal that will take care of the insanity of foreign naval strategists or stupid diplomats who run the affairs of belligerent countries.

But an examination of the reasons why Germany was indifferent to American public opinion may reveal that, after a 1916 political campaign fought on the issue of keeping America out of war, the Germans may have come to the conclusion that the United States would not ultimately defend her rights.

World War Recalled

Now the proposed neutrality policies for the future, which are pending in congress, all go on the supposition that America wants peace at any price, that rights will be surrendered rather than risk complications with foreign powers, and that, by a policy of complete isolation, the United States can avoid entanglements.

Most of the suggestions which have been made ignore the realities of a situation such as existed between 1914 and 1917. First of all, the belligerent with the most powerful navy enforces its blockade against its enemy. The neutral countries have their choice of supplying materials and foodstuffs to the belligerent with the better navy or declaring an embargo on all trade to foreign countries. As a practical matter, trans-shipment through neutral territory to belligerent countries is impossible to prevent.

At present in congress the proponents of a complete embargo believe this is the way to avoid war. Suppose, however, Great Britain is engaged in a life and death struggle with another power. Canada, it should not be forgotten, is a part of the British Empire. Would the American people stop all trade with Canada? Would the Canadian people like that attitude? Would there be no bad feeling resulting in untoward incidents that might inflame the passions of foreign countries against us?

Favoritism in Embargoes

An embargo of any kind, a warning to American shippers not to export to neutral countries that might resell goods to belligerents, is in itself taking sides. It is not neutrality. To enforce peace in the world, the League of Nations has tried to get concerted action on economic embargoes. America has sought to pursue an independent policy and has incurred ill-will in Italy. Today America's attitude is the subject of criticism in our own country. What would it be if Italy were engaged in a major war in Europe? Would Italians in the United States feel happy about it?

Neutrality is a difficult and perplexing problem. It cannot be solved by writing specific statutes covering all possible contingencies, nor can it be solved by announcing in advance that America doesn't care what foreign governments do to her in the way of violating rights, that foreign airships may come over or submarines may attack without warning innocent persons traveling between the United States and neutral countries and that we'll do nothing about it.

But such a course might certainly lead to quicker involvement than it did in 1917. The only protection any country has in adopting a policy of embargoes is to take such action absolutely in unison with other countries, so that a united front is presented. If America, for her own reasons doesn't want to become a member of the League of Nations, she can at least agree to take economic steps to curtail war trade only when other nations do likewise. Any treaty in advance may impair America's freedom of action.

Since the problem involves so many uncertainties, the only thing that can be done is to put discretionary power in the President, and if he doesn't conform to public opinion, congress can always meet and take such power away from him.

It is the definition of American policy as a submission in advance to belligerent roaming of the seas and even roaming of the air that may drag America into war by encouraging the navies or air forces of their countries to consider the United States and adjacent areas an unrestricted theater of battle.

COMMUNICATIONS

Escanaba Daily Press
Escanaba, Michigan

Commends Col. Knox

Sir:

Unsympathetic as I am of die-hard Republicanism and hesitant as I am to classify myself in Colonel Frank Knox's political category. I wish to commend that gentlemen up his straightforward stand upon the inflationary Townsend Plan. Mr. Knox has the courage to emphatically state that he is against it, first, last, and all the time. He also says that anyone who supports him for the presidency should do so with the understanding that the Townsend Plan is tobos as far as he's concerned.

I wish to contrast his attitude with that of many other so-called "wise" politicians of both major parties who, in an effort to drum up support for their respective parties, have intimated that they are "for" the plan. I refer especially to Representive Hamilton Fish of New York who in one breath says that FRD was stingy with the aged in his recent social security legislation and in the next bitterly condemns "New Deal" spending. Mr. Knox (to give the devil his due) is at least consistant.

The writer is thoroughly disgusted with the intellectual dishonesty shown by the politicians on the Townsend issue. If all G. O. P. politicians were as straightforward as Colonel Knox, the old party might command the respect of a few voters.

Sincertly,
Robert P. Mitchell

Ironwood—John B. Chappell was named to succeed J. B. Patrick, resigned, as a member of the city commission and E. A. Ravey Jr., was named to succeed the late Alvin L. Rummel by the votes of Commissioners H. M. Wick and Raymond E. Garvey at an adjourned regular meeting of the city commission last night.

After taking this action, the commission adjourned until 9:30 o'clock this morning when it was to reorganize. Evelyn Cass, William Schmit Wedding Thursday

At a ceremony performed Thursday morning at St. Joseph's church, Evelyn Cass, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cass, 918 South 14th street, became the bride of William Schmit, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Schmit, 808 South Tenth street.

Rev. Fr. Edward Leary, O. F. M., was celebrant of the mass, which was at 7 o'clock, and officiated at the marriage service.

The bride was attended by her sister, Charlotte, and Robert Schmit attended his brother, as best man.

The bride was becomingly gowned in a royal blue crepe with which she wore a silver turban and silver sandals. Her corsage was of Talisman roses and white sweet peas. Her bridesmaid wore leaf rust crepe with brown and gold accessories and a corsage of bronze mums and white sweet peas.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at Peterson's tea room, Ford River, with covers for twelve guests, immediate members of the two families. Attractive appointments for the breakfast were arranged in a color scheme of pink and white.

The bride is a graduate of Escanaba high school and has been employed by the Hoyler Baking company. Mr. Schmit, who also is a graduate of Escanaba high school and who attended the Michigan College of Mining and Technology, is with the Delta county highway department.

Tailored Slip And Pantie Set Is Easy To Make

BY MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9662

Sleek comfort's written between the very seams of this slip and pantie set that's dedicated to smooth-fitting and easy making. And what feminine heart wouldn't adore several sets just like it! They're within everyone's reach, and their low cost makes them an out-and-out economy. The slip does a nice job of molding the figure, with its fitting bodice and all-in-one straps that can't slip. The neckline's cut low enough in back to allow it to be worn with your lowest cut frocks. And could anything be smoother than waistband panties which lie flat. A non-shrinkable rayon or crepe is nice. You'll want satin trimmed with dainty lace for best. Complete, Diagrammed Marian Martin Sew Chart included.

Pattern 9662 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards 39 inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for EACH MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE of each pattern.

THE NEW MARIAN MARTIN PATTERN BOOK will be ready for mailing December 18. Place your order now, and be among the first to receive a copy. It's a practical pattern book that interprets Spring's newest fashions in thrifty, easy-to-make clothes for the whole family! PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. Resort Styles Are Exciting

(From David Lowenthal, New York)

New York—Cotton, silk and linen prints as clear and bright as circus costumes; monotone material in dusty, slate-like effects; plenty of white, invariably combined with a bright color; sheer, lacy woolens for evening—these are merely a hint of how new and exciting the fabrics for southern resorts and cruises really are.

Palm Beach collections never have been so colorful. From the time you feast your eyes on Heim's fish and heart prints (you'll be hearing about these two for months to come and you'll see them in everything from beach to formal dresses) until you count the confetti dots on printed sports frocks, you'll be enthralled.

Closely Follows Shirtwaist Mode

You may not be lucky enough to get to Florida or the South Seas for a mid-winter vacation, but you'll appreciate southern resort clothes just the same. After all, they are a pretty accurate forecast of what next summer's fashion trends will be.

When first you look at sports and daytime dresses to wear in tropical sunshine, you'll be likely to pigeon-hole them in your mind as "mere variations of the shirtwaist theme." Do look a second time, however, because careful scrutiny will make you see that the variations are unique as well as lovely.

Neat little seams, tucks and architectural-like pockets lend interest to bodices. Skirts are pencil-slim with kick pleats for comfort. Buttons are interesting and colorful and often are used to provide contrast and a startling effect.

Pink With Black Belt

The dusty pink dress (center) with black patent leather belt and black buttons marching up the front has raglan shoulders with short sleeves that flare gracefully. This will be as good at Newport or Puget Sound next summer as it is in Florida right now.

The slate blue model (right) with black ball buttons and monogrammed collar has four pockets, the lower two of which serve as a tailored heading for the set-in panels. This, too, has short sleeves which flare.

Church Events

Christian Science Churches

"God" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, January 5.

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Hebrews 4:12): "For the word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 472): "All reality is in God and His creation, harmonious and eternal. That which He creates is good, and He makes all that is made."

These simple steps can help your family have FEWER COLDS—SHORTER COLDS

1. To help build RESISTANCE to Colds—Live normally—avoid excesses. Eat simple food and keep elimination regular. Drink plenty of water. Take some exercise daily—outdoors preferably. Get plenty of rest and sleep. (During the colds season, gargle night and morning with Vicks Voratone Antiseptic, especially designed for safe daily use to aid in defense against infection which may enter through the mouth.)

2. To help PREVENT Many Colds—At the first warning nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze, use Vicks Va-tro-nol—just a few drops up each nostril. Va-tro-nol is especially designed for the nose and upper throat—where most colds start. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off head colds in the early stages.

3. To help END a Cold Sooner If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning, rub throat and chest at bedtime with Vicks VapoRub. VapoRub acts two ways at once: (1) By stimulation through the skin, like a poultice or plaster; (2) By inhalation of its penetrating medicated vapors, direct to inflamed air-passages. Through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm, soothes irritation, helps break congestion.

These three steps form the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds—a practical home guide to fewer and shorter colds. Developed by Vicks Chemists and Medical Consultants; tested in extensive clinics by practicing physicians; further proved in everyday home use by millions. Full description of the Plan in each Vicks package—or write for details of Plan and trial samples of Vick Colds-Control Aids. Address: Vicks, 128 Milton Street, Greensboro, N. C.

Theatres

The Delft theatre presents two features today and Saturday, "I Found Stella Parish" and "Two Fisted."

"I Found Stella Parish" is a First National picture based on the powerful and thrilling dramatic story by John Monk Saunders. Kay Francis heads the talented cast which includes Ian Hunter, Paul Lukas, Sybil Jason, Jessie Ralph and Barton MacLane.

Miss Francis has the role of a beautiful and talented actress who is besieged by suitors, including her theatrical producer, but who rejects all offers of marriage.

The publicity attending her success reaches the ears of her husband and father of her small daughter, who tries to blackmail her. Terrified lest he betray her secret and ruin both her life and that of her child, she flees from London the very night she has made a sensational hit.

Lee Tracy, after a much too long absence from the screen, comes back to win new laurels in Paramount's "Two Fisted," sparkling comedy romance of the lively adventures of two lowbrows who break into highbrow society.

"Two Fisted" is a rollicking screen adaptation of an original story by James Gleason and Richard Taber and pictures the breezy events of a prize fighter manager and his dumb pug when a chance meeting with a Park Avenue playboy crashes them into the swanky four hundred via the butler route.

FLORIDA IS BOOMING

Iron River—Tourist business and general recovery is bringing a remarkable upturn in Florida real estate and, particularly, in building construction, Charles W. Lindstrom, of Stambaugh, wrote friends in the district yesterday.

Lindstrom, former owner of the Iron River garage, is staying in West Palm Beach and not in Fort Lauderdale as he had at first planned. He wrote:

"On Miami beach there are more than 100 buildings under construction and in Miami, Coral Gables, and Coconut Grove we see new buildings going up all over—business buildings as well as houses."

WILL BUILD SCHOOL

Menominee—With opening of contractor's bids on January 14 and award of contract for construction of a $55,000 addition and remodeling of the John N. Davis Junior high school building, work on the Public Works Administration project is expected to start immediately. The project is set up for period of six months.

The project is sponsored by the Menominee Board of Education and consists of an addition to the gymnasium 122 feet long and 61 feet wide on the south side of the present building. The addition will be of brick and concrete construction, with face brick and stone exterior harmonizing with the older school structure.

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

SPAIN'S DEFEAT IN AMERICA

FOR seven years, from 1810, sporadic attempts were made at revolt against the tyranny of Spain in Chile. Then, in 1817, came Col. Jose de San Martin from across the Andes in Argentina. He had helped gain independence from Spain in eastern South America and determined to free the rest of the continent from European rule.

Crossing the mountains with a well-equipped army, and aided by able lieutenants, headed by Bernardo O'Higgins, San Martin met the Royalists at Chacabuco Ridge and defeated them overwhelmingly.

This battle sealed the fate of Spain in South America. A republic was set up in Chile and O'Higgins became president. From Chacabuco, San Martin went to Peru, for which he won independence as he had for Chile.

The Battle of Chacabuco is illustrated on one of a series of stamps issued by Chile in 1910, to commemorate the centenary of its independence, which it figures from 1810.

CONSULT YOUR WIFE
for Sound Advice . .

MR. MAN, you may know more about the intricacies of the stock exchange, more of high finance, more of the whys and wherefores of politics, more of this and that---

BUT, when it comes to shopping, your wife has probably got you beat six ways to the jack-pot.

Now don't let your male egoism get the better of you and just say, "The bl——k she has,"—think about it. After all, women have made it their business to be good, economical shoppers. They have devoted thought and effort to the business "you haven't had time for."

Go to your wife and ask her how she handles this shopping proposition. She'll tell you, "Well, the first thing, and it's the most important, too, is to read the ads in the Daily Press."

And then she'll be glad to demonstrate for your benefit exactly how reading the ads led to economies and advantages in the purchase of everything from that club steak you liked so well last night to the new dress you've just been admiring.

Then, too, she'll probably welcome the opportunity of proving to you that she can save you money and assure you of better quality by buying your shirts and socks and such for you after checking the ads. Why not let her try it? She is a real expert at this shopping business. Above all, don't forget to follow her advice when you're shopping for yourself and check the ads in this paper before you start out to do your buying.

THEATRES

Engagingly sentimental, wholesomely appealing, "The Virginia Judge," film version of Walter C. Kelly's internationally known stage character, showing today at the Rialto Theatre, is a happy combination of gay comedy, heartwarming drama and unsophisticated romance, a simple story of small town life in the Tidewater cunotry of Virginia.

"Without Regret," the story of an Oriental romance that turned into a London scandal, is the second feature.

DEATH CLAIMS FRED BERGER

Well Known Resident of Manistique Dies in Escanaba

Ferdinand Berger, familiarly known as Fred to his friends, passed away shortly after noon Thursday in the St. Francis hospital, Escanaba, where he had been a patient since Wednesday night. The cause of death was not learned. He had been in ailing health for the past few months, but did not become seriously ill until Christmas Day.

Mr. Berger, who was 52 years old was born on May 24, 1883, in Green Bay, Wis. He came to Manistique about 35 years ago and had kept his residence here since. He was married on May 25, 1903, to Miss Mabel Pierce, of Thompson. Prior to ten years ago he had been employed locally as a shingle weaver. Ten years ago he entered business for himself in the Hayden building, and has been engaged in business since in Manistique, Escanaba, Wilson, and Marinette. About two years ago he opened Berger's Tavern on Walnut street. While operating the business enterprises out of town he maintained his residence here.

He was a member of the St. Francis de Sales church. Back in the days of his employment as shingle weaver, he was president of the Shingle Weavers Union and later became president of a combined Timber Workers Union.

For nine years he served as a deputy sheriff under the administrations of Sheriffs Klagstad and Griffin.

The body will be prepared for burial by Gunnarson and Kefauver, local morticians, according to information received Thursday afternoon. Funeral arrangements are still incomplete.

He is survived by his wife and eight children: Mrs. Joseph (Pearl) Wood, Mrs. Carl (Blanche) Lynts, Mrs. Frank (Myrtle) Carrothers, William, Raymond, Fred, Richard and Florence, all of Manistique. He also leaves one brother, Arthur Berger, of Carney, Mich., and two sisters, Mrs. Gust Callord of Carney, and Mrs. Marcel Nadeau of Stephenson, Mich.

Pattinson's Hold Joint Birthday Celebration Here

One of the first social events of the New Year here was the delightful dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pattinson at the Ossawinamakee hotel at six o'clock on New Year's night. The Pattinsons entertained 20 of their friends at a joint birthday anniversary celebration. Mrs. Pattinson is 78 and Mr. Pattinson is 86.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Pattinson were born in northern England, Mrs. Pattinson on December 28, 1857 and Mr. Pattinson on January 2, 1849. In the "Eighties" they came to the United States and located in Manistique in 1888.

Mr. Pattinson has always been a staunch citizen interested in the betterment of the community and has been in the laundry business for over 40 years. He and his wife have always been faithful and devout members of the Methodist Episcopal church. As one sees them in the activities of life today, it is to marvel at their alertness and activity, despite their advanced age.

At the close of a delicious three-course dinner at the hotel, Rev. S. T. Bottrell, acting as toast master, called on Justice W. G. Stephens for remarks. In behalf of those present, Mr. Stephens congratulated the couple with fitting words on the happy occasion. He spoke of the many years of happy association he and the entire company had enjoyed with them.

Remarks were also made by Mr. Walter Orr, the next oldest present and Mr. Keith Bundy, the youngest guest. Mr. Pattinson, in a few gracious words expressed the pleasure it had occasioned him and his wife to have their friends with them to celebrate the anniversary and invited the guests to spend the balance of the evening at the Pattinson home in a social time.

At the home reminiscences by the members of the group were interspersed with music. The closing song was "Blessed Be the Tie that Binds." Rev. Bottrell offered a prayer and refreshments were served.

Among those present were Rev. and Mrs. S. T. Bottrell and sons Wilbur and Emerson, Justice W. G. Stephens and Mrs. Stephens, Mr. and Mrs. Mueller, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. D. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Riley, Mr. and Mrs. H. Hargreaves, Mr. and Mrs. K. Bundy, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Orr, Mr. Jacob Pattinson and Mrs. Belle Anderson.

Elks Party Success

The New Year's Eve party of the local Elks lodge held at the temple from 11 p. m. on New Year's Eve until 4:45 the following morning was a very successful dance in many respects. Possibly the largest crowd to ever attend an Elks dance was present, ninety six couples paid admissions before intermission.

Hats, noise makers, serpentine and balloons were provided so the dancers could greet the new year with the traditional gay welcome. Dancing was to the music of Buck Williams and his orchestra.

AAA PROGRAM DETAILS ISSUED

Explanation Given of New Corn and Hog Contracts

Details of the two-year adjustment program for 1936 and 1937 to be offered by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration to corn and hog farmers have just been announced, says Lee Stewart, county agricultural agent.

The new contract, effective as of December 1, 1935, requires that the signer produce in 1936 at least 50 per cent and not more than 100 per cent of his market hog base if he is to receive the maximum hog adjustment payment. The maximum rate of benefit payments for 1936 will be $1.25 per hog in the market base. Deductions from the maximum will be made from payments to contract signers who produce less than 50 per cent of their market base number, or more than 100 per cent of that number.

The cooperating producer also must plant at least 25 per cent of his corn base next year but not more than a percentage which is within the permitted optional range of 70 to 90 per cent of his base. Corn payments in 1936 will be in two installments, payable about August 1 and about December 31. The rate will be 35 cents per bushel, times the appraised yield, times the adjusted corn acreage. The 1937 rate per bushel is to be not less than 30 cents, and is to be announced by November 30, 1936.

Hog payments will be made, in one installment, as soon as possible after final compliance check at close of each year. The 1937 maximum rate will not be less than the 1936 maximum. Provision is made in the contract for division of payments between landlords and tenants. Planting of soil-improving or erosion-preventing crops on the adjusted corn acres in addition to the area normally devoted to these purposes on the farm, is required.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lefpher have moved to Watersmeet where they will make their future home.

NOTICE

The four per cent (4%) collection fee on taxes payable after January 10th, 1936 will be waived by the City until and including February 15th, 1936.

With All My Love

BY MARY RAYMOND

Copyright NEA, 1935

I was back. Paula was on the same steamer, and we came from New York on the same train."

"Paula!" Dana's face whitened. She walked on, saying nothing.

"Yes. It wouldn't surprise me if Paula and that Britisher who's been trailing after her wouldn't be at the party. You remember how thick Paula and Grace were before she went away?"

"Yes," Dana said.

"If you'd rather not go—" Ronnie began.

Dana shook her head. "No, we'll go. How could it matter to me now?" She turned and looked at Ronnie with a queer, detached expression.

"Paula was looking fit," Ronnie said, trying to make his voice sound casual. "This man who is visiting her is a cruise trophy. Rather interesting fellow. He's an explorer who has seen and done about everything, chased bandits in Nicaragua, hunted in Africa, lived among remote Indian tribes. A hard-bitten, restless type.

"An adventurer," Dana said.

"In a way, though I understand there is a bona fide title that he has democratically discarded. Tell me about yourself."

"I've been going places again lots of places," Dana said. "Doing things."

Ronnie searched her eyes and found the shadows and a restless glint. Dana was looking more beautiful than ever. Smarter.

A car whirled by and Mrs. Weathersby leaned out to bow and smile. "There's Ronnie Moore!" she said to her companion. "Well, now it won't be long, I guess, before Dana Stanley will be Mrs. Millions. Maybe Ronnie would sidestep if he knew how scandalously she's been behaving."

"Scandalously?" the other woman said. "I never heard a word of scandal."

"If it isn't scandalous to turn night into day, to be here, there and everywhere with a flock of men jumping after her like a lot of trained clowns, I don't know what you would call it! But I guess Ronnie will jump higher than any of them."

Paula and Dana met at the edge of the lake. Paula was in a motorboat that was about to leave the shore. The man with her had blond hair that had been tinged bronze by many suns, and an interesting, weatherbeaten face.

Paula wore green slacks with a sweater and a green scarf about her shoulders. Her red hair flamed under the sun. Her mutinous mouth was carmined brilliantly.

Dana stood for a moment without speaking, watching a lambent glow leap to Paula's somber eyes.

"'Lo, Dana!" Paula cried then. "It's grand to see you. Excuse me for not getting out of the boat and properly greeting you, darling."

"Excused," Dana said in an even voice. "How are you, Paula?"

"Never better," Paula said. She turned to her companion. "I am about to introduce you to Dana Stanley with the warning that, to my knowledge, she always gets her man. The best thing Dana does is to strew the local green with discarded hearts. Dana, Cyril Lancaster."

"Do I look like that?" Dana asked Paula's companion.

"Yes," he said, "you do. But I never run from danger."

Paula's expression was none too pleased, Dana saw, as the boat moved away.

"Look out there, Dana," Bill teased. "Paula's picked herself a nice English lord. Are you going to vamp him in short order?"

Cynthia Baxter drawled: "Might be safer not to trespass on Paula's hunting preserves, darling."

Dana answered gaily, her thoughts racing along a different path.

Why had Paula invited this Englishman here? Was he to be the lever to pry Scott into a proposal? No, that was absurd. If Scott loved Paula—and of course he did—such tactics would be unnecessary. Cyril Lancaster was probably merely a cruise acquaintance with a flexible itinerary and Paula was carrying on the much-heralded tradition of southern hospitality.

At dinner that night Dana found the Englishman at her side and, almost immediately, he was monopolizing her attention.

"I wouldn't dare suggest fishing at daybreak to Paula," he said. "There isn't a fish in the sea that she would allow to interfere with her beauty sleep. But I think you might enjoy it. Want to come along?"

Dana was about to refuse when she found Paula looking at her coldly, curiously. Dana thought bitterly: "She can take my husband away from me, but she dares me to look at any man who is interested in her."

Warm color splashed Dana's cheeks like banners of defiance "I'd love to," she said.

With the house wrapped in darkness, Dana came out on the porch in the early hours. She wore white linen slacks, a brown shirt, and carried an enormous sun hat.

Cyril Lancaster gave her an approving nod. "Nice of you not to let me down. I rather counted on you. And so did our host. He ordered breakfast for us, I see."

Shortly afterward they were shoving away from shore. The lake, at this hour, was covered with an enveloping blanket of fog that presently would be rolled away by the sun. As the boat moved toward the middle of the lake, the great, moss-draped cypress trees rising darkly along the shore were swallowed in the gray mist.

"There's a theory that fishing is better on the other side of this lake," Dana said.

Lancaster smiled. "The other side of the pasture, you know," he said. "But maybe that's why that bunch of doctors are fishing over there."

"Doctors?" Dana exclaimed.

"Bill Richardson said a group of physicians were on a fishing party at a club directly across from us."

"Oh!" said Dana.

She was being silly. There were doctors—and doctors. "Let's stay on this side," she suggested.

"Better have a look at the shore line over there first," the Englishman said. "There may be something back of that theory.

The fog was beginning to lift, and he let the motor out. Spray splashed against Dana's face. "Shall I slow up? I'm afraid you'll get a wetting."

She shook her head negatively. "I'm dressed for a wetting."

"Watch us take this curve then!"

Without warning, almost in their path, a dark blur appeared. The motorboat lurched, missed the dark object by inches, spun dizily for a moment. A hoarse shout followed them.

"All there?" Lancaster asked anxiously.

"I think so," Dana gasped. She was feeling rather shaken. The dark spot had been a boat in their path, a group of early fishermen, doubtless.

"I owe those fellows an apology," said Dana's companion. He turned the boat and started back. In another moment they were close to the other motorboat.

"Hi, there!" called the Englishman cheerfully. "That was a darned fool thing to do, chasing about as such speed on a foggy morning. I almost knocked you chaps for a loop."

"Well, damn you! Don't take any more fool chances with—with that girl aboard."

Dana caught her breath sharply. Was she never to be able to subdue that unruly heart of hers? She searched the shadowy faces frantically.

Suddenly she and Scott were staring at each other.

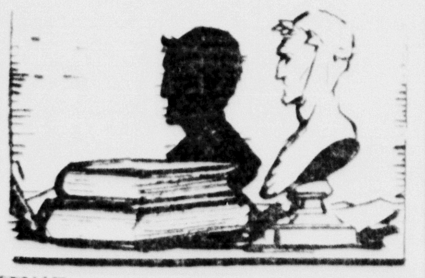
STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

"CHRISTIAN HOMER"



THE world knows Dante Alighieri, great Italian poet, as the "Christian Homer," creator of the "Divine Comedy," and hero of an idyllic love affair with Beatrice, his childhood sweetheart. But it was as soldier and political leader that Dante first became famous.

Born in 1265, in Florence, Dante at an early age found himself in the conflict between the Guelphs and the Ghibellines, who divided Italy at the time, and between the Whites and the Blacks of Florence. His nature placed him on the side of the Whites, or the ennobled rich, against the more conservative nobility, and led, in 1300, to his election as a "prior" of Florence.

The next year, however the Blacks came into power and Dante was forced into exile, in poverty. It was at this time that he is supposed to have written his greatest work, "The Divine Comedy." He spent the remainder of his life in Ravenna, and died there in 1321.

Dante is shown on one of three stamps issued by Italy in 1921, on the sixth centennial of his death.

New Dams Guard Paris From Flood

Paris, (AP)—The government is building a series of dams across the Marne to prevent both flood and drought in the capital.

Spring flood waters will be checked by the barriers when the Seine threatens to run rampant over the lower parts of Paris as it has so often. Some 820,000 cubic feet of water will be stored in a reservoir covering 275 acres in the forest of Der.

Two of the dams, already completed, proved their worth during a dry summer when water consumption was high. At no time was the Seine low enough to impede navigation.

A white oak, estimated to be 500 years old, has a limb spread of 130 feet in Campbell county, Va.

BY FRANK MAC MILLEN
Associated Press Financial Writer

New York, Jan. 2 (AP)—Steels, rubbers, specialties and a few industrials jarred an irregular market off center for a slightly higher average close today.

Measured by the Associated Press average of 60 stocks the market rose .1 of a point to 55.7. Transactions totaled 2,250,100 shares compared with 2,441,335 on Tuesday.

Brokers said the irregularity of price swings throughout the session was the result of mixed sentiment in the financial community.

On the one hand, hopes of continued recovery stimulated bidding. On the other, some observers believed, the imminence of uncharted legislation served to bring profit-taking waves.

Statistics Examined

The tide of year-end reviews presented to Wall Street contained much comment from authoritative sources which afforded encouragement.

In particular did investors and traders focus attention on statistical indications that trade and industry had improved during the year just closed and on analysis which point to additional gains on the trek ahead.

The price of imported bar silver at New York remained unchanged in the face of a slight reduction in the quotation for the white metal in London. Mining issues were a bit higher in quiet trading.

The bond market was firm, featured by a rise of .2 of a point to 102.4 for the Associated Press average of industrial bonds. The closing level was at a new 1935-36 high.

Wheat ended ½ to 7-8 of a cent a bushel higher. Corn was up 3-8 to 5-8 of a cent. Cotton rose 40 to 70 cents a bale.

In the foreign exchange market the French franc sank .00 7-8 of a cent to 6.61¾ cents. The pound sterling was off ¼ of a cent at $4.92 7-8.

Commission house observers said the first session of the new year was marked by scattered so-called long term investment buying. American Telephone was up 3¼ to 158¾.

Equities up fractions to as much as 2 points included U. S. Steel at 49 3-8, Air Reduction at 171, Pure Oil at 17, Republic Steel at 19¾, Bethlehem Steel at 52½ and Standard Oil of California at 40½.

Liquidation which put Schenley down 1½ to 50 and National Distillers down ¾ to 30 was attributed in market circles partly to the recommendation of Governor Lehman of New York that liquor taxes be increased to aid the social security program. Announced price reductions in some liquors may have also been a factor.

Wall Street's expectation that the motor industry will slacken on the stretch ahead was reflected by losses of more than a point each for General Motors at 55¾ and Chrysler at 90½.

New York, Jan. 2 (AP)—Domestic corporation bonds advanced over a broad front in the initial session of the year today.

In the railroad division advances were in a big majority, and there were notable firm spots in the industrials. Utilities were inclined to lag behind, although losses in most cases were small.

U. S. government bonds blossomed out in the most sweeping move in a month and transfers in this section were a considerable improvement over the listless sessions during December. Closing prices were the best of the day. Most all of the active issues were in the upper bracket.

There was no news of importance to affect the market.

American Rolling Mill 4¼s and Republic Steel 5s, both selling far above par, were in demand at advances of 1 to 2 points. A respectable showing was made by many others, including Paramount 6s at 93½.

A large assortment of rail bonds ended 1 to 2 higher.

Night Baseball Has Met Indifferent Success

REDS ARE ONLY MAJOR 'HAWKS'

American League Still Frowns on Owl Circuit

New York, Jan. 2 (AP)—Despite the striking success of the first major league experiment with night baseball, as conducted by the Cincinnati club, it appears the Reds are unlikely to have much, if any, company in offering competition under the lights for 1936.

Night ball is still taboo in the American league, notwithstanding the reported conversion of some of the "old guard," notably Clark Griffith of Washington, to the idea. In the National league, which voted to continue on the basis of limiting night games to a maximum of seven—one with each league rival—in any league city, Boston seems to be the only club seriously considering an extension of the Cincinnati experiment. The Reds, of course, will continue to make the maximum possible use of their $80,000 lighting plant.

Breadon Enthusiastic

Sam Breadon, enterprising president of the St. Louis Cardinals, is an enthusiastic believer of night baseball but his willingness to have the Red Birds furnish evening entertainment is blocked by the fact the club does not own its home playing grounds. Sportsman's Park, where all major league ball is played in St. Louis, is controlled by the Browns.

Ford C. Frick, youthful president of the National league, believes night baseball is here to stay and no longer to be considered an "experiment." It is conceded, however, that it will be a long time before anything like a majority of big clubs is equipped to play under the lights. The American league's topranking club's are solidly against the idea.

Gain in Attendance

Winning clubs, with little or no worry about day-time patronage, naturally see no reason for going to the heavy expense of a lighting plant, for a limited number of games, without any assurance of its necessity. The general gain in major league attendance last year, in both leagues, has convinced most magnates the game is well on the road to solid financial recovery without artificial aid. Attendance records were broken in several big league parks last season, including the Polo Grounds in New York, both Boston Parks and St. Louis. The New York Giants, although finishing early third, had one of their biggest seasons on the road. Detroit, Cincinnati and Chicago all registered big gains.

Samuel Ryder, Golf Patron, Dies At 77

London, Jan. 2 (AP)—Samuel Ryder, patron of professional golf and donor of the cup for British-American matches, died suddenly today in a hotel here. He was 77 years old.

Ryder was the head of a seed firm bearing his name at St. Albans, where he had lived for 50 years.

He had come for the holidays. His death was caused by pneumonia.

The golf-lover presented the Ryder cup in 1926 for competition between professional players forming teams for the United States and Great Britain. The matches take place in alternate years, each country being host in turn.

INTEREST IN SKI JUMPING GROWS

Fine Hills Constructed at Iron Mountain and Ironwood

Detroit, Jan. 2 (AP)—The breath taking sport of ski-jumping appears headed for a boom winter in Michigan.

Jumpers working out at the Michigan State Ski club's two jumps at Brighton, Mich., are evincing much interest in the erection of two new hills in the upper peninsula. A new hill designed as a 90 meter slope, is being completed at Iron Mountain and may be the largest hill in the mid-west, according to A. J. Barth, secretary of the Central United States Ski association.

The Gogebic Range Ski club at Ironwood, Mich., also has a new hill, while the Ishpeming Ski club has completed changes in its hill which are expected to make possible jumps of 220 feet. Walter Bietila, of Ishpeming, the state's only representative on the 1936 Olympic ski team, worked out there preparatory to sailing for Germany.

Ishpeming's annual tournament, the classic of upper peninsula ski meets, will be held on Washington's birthday. The interstate meeting planned for Brighton will be held February 16 and a fine field of jumpers is expected to compete in both events.

The State Ski association will hold a tournament Sunday at Brighton.

Leo Dube Is WPA Skating Supervisor

There will be a meeting of hockey players Monday evening at St. Patrick's rink.

Spinach Puts Fight In "Fighting Irish"

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 2 (AP)—The secret came out today—it's spinach that puts fight into the "Fighting Irish" of Notre Dame.

They eat it by the bushel along with more than a ton and a half of meat daily, and wash it down with a small lake of milk and coffee, said John Kilfether.

And Kilfether, as custodian of the larder at the world's largest boarding school, ought to know for it's his job to buy the food.

The only rest he gets is during vacations and even then he has before him the vision of 2,700 returning students—every one of them hungry.

There's one thing you can always count on, he said, and that is a student's appetite. It's never satisfied.

2,000 Drum Sticks!

If spinach is on the menu, it's Kilfether's job to supply the chef with 35 bushels of it. It's a universal favorite among Notre Dame students whether they're fullbacks on Coach Elmer Layden's football team or just members of the cheering section, said Kilfether.

But that's not all they get for dinner. If chicken is included it takes 80 dozen or 960 fowls—nearly 2,000 drum sticks. Kilfether said he buys about 2,580 chickens a week.

Cauliflower and lettuce are also favorites with the Irish. They eat 30 crates of cauliflower and six cases of lettuce at a meal and think nothing of it.

During the course of a day Kilfether said 1,100 loaves of bread pass from the kitchen to the dining room and disappear along with 500 pounds of butter. For thirst quenchers Notre Dame students drink 750 gallons of milk and 350 gallons of coffee a day.

Kilfether buys food a week ahead on a basis of 63,000 meals and his weekly order to the grocer and butcher is generally given in tons instead of pounds.

STATE STADIUM BEING CLOSED

MIAA Track and Field Meet Must Find Another Site

East Lansing, Jan. 2 (AP)—The Michigan interscholastic track and field meet, held annually at Michigan State college for a quarter century, became an orphan today.

A WPA project to increase the seating capacity of the college football stadium will entail the destruction of the track that surrounds the gridiron. College authorities said it would be impossible to lay a new track by spring.

Although no other city had bid yet for the meet which annually attracts 500 or more athletes from the schools of both peninsulas, Grand Rapids, Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti were viewed as possible hosts.

The stadium project also will mean that the Michigan intercollegiate track and field meet, to which any institution of higher learning in the state with the exception of the University of Michigan is eligible, also must be moved.

Ralph H. Young, director of athletics and coach of the track team, said he has not decided where the college thinclads will practice when warmer weather rolls around.

Millionaires Win From Painesdale

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 2 (AP)—Overcoming soft ice and the fighting Painesdale Panthers in a furious hockey battle in the Palestra tonight, the Marquette Millionaires chalked up a 2 to 1 victory before 1,000 yelling customers.

A game that looked like a combination of shinny, golf and hockey at the start hit a furious pace despite swampy ice in the second period, when Murphy, of the Panthers, scored. Marquette's two counters came in the last period and were made in two minutes.

MICHIGAN NIPS BUTLER QUINT

8,000 Persons Witness 26 to 23 Victory by Wolverines

Indianapolis, Jan. 2 (AP)—The University of Michigan's "Townsend plan" for basketball worked successfully tonight as the Wolverines nosed out Butler university 26 to 23 before more han 8,000 persons.

It was Johnny Townsend, an Indianapolis boy, who scored the winning field goal just when it seemed that Butler was about to hand Michigan its first defeat of the season. Then to make it certain, Earl Meyers of Detroit made another field goal to give the Wolverines their three-point margin with less than two minutes to play.

Two other Hoosiers, Earl Townsend, a brother of Johnny, and Matt Patanelli of Elkhart, aided materially in the Michigan victory. Patanelli registered a field goal and a free throw to tie the count at 22 after Butler had gained a lead during the last half.

The half ended with the Wolverines out in front 14 to 10.

Butler rallied at the start of the second half. Gerkensmeyer, Armstrong, Brafford and Jones scored to give Butler a 20 to 15 lead. Then Michigan started its final drive, and pulled up to a tie at 22 all.

Tamagno seized high point honors for the Wolverines, with six points. Gerkensmeyer led the Bulldogs in scoring with eight points.

SPILLING the DOPE

BY JOHNNY INKSLINGER

Dropped into the junior high gym the other day to watch Carl Nordberg put his cagers through their paces and had a little gab-fest with Al Kircher, former Gladstone high school star and later an all-around luminary at Michigan State. Al and his brother, Harry, another former Upbay star now a freshman at Albion college, had stopped in to "chew the fat" with Nordberg and watch the boys work out.

—o—

Al has had plenty of experiences since he made things miserable for the Eskymos a few years ago but he hasn't changed a mite. He called signals on the great State grid team for a backfield composed of Monnett, Ellowitz and McNutt; he heaved in the basket in the final seconds of play to defeat Michigan; to took a round out of a 200 pounder (Al is hardly more than a midget as college athletes go) on the baseball trip in the South one spring. And yet Al is just the same nonchalant, unconcerned fellow that he ever was.

—o—

Watching practice efforts of the Eskymos, he occasionaly offered comment. He noted particularly the good ball handling of the boys but was of the opinion that Nordberg's material was none too accomplished nor too plentiful. He volunteered the information that he thought "Yutch" Anderson was a clever forward and that Walt Johnson had good possibilities as a defensive man. Al lamented the fact that he would be unable to attend the big game between Gladstone and Escanaba which will be played here Tuesday evening.

—o—

In answer to a question as to his own prospects this year at Trout Creek, Kircher said that by the end of the season he should have a team that would compare favorably with the one which last year won the championship of Class D. He lost three of his best men from that team and is working rather slowly on his replacements this year. Good as his team may be later on in the year, it is next year that Al is waiting for as he doesn't lose a single player of his present crew and he has a crew of very promising freshmen coming up.

—o—

Questioned as to the cage outlook in general on the range this year, Kircher believes most of the larger schools will not be up to their usual strength. He predicts that Stambaugh and Iron River will be the class of that territory. At Stambaugh, Marty Mahlberg has a crew of experienced veterans really capable of going places, included among them being Selmo, Grailer, Santi, King, Dileski and Alexson. Coach Eddie Morcombe at Iron River is just about king of the U. P. this year as far as fine material is concerned. His two forwards, Pociopa and Cieciarka, were all-tourney choices last year while his center, Ford, was given honorable mention. In addition, he has two other very clever vets, Zukowski and Nora. This team is big, plenty fast and really clever. Kircher looks for these two teams to produce the fireworks. In the meanwhile, however, keep an eye on Al's team—it is going places.

PETERSON CREW MEETS 'STIQUE

Rapid River Travels to Manistique; Expect Tough Battle

Rapid River—The Rapid River high school basketball team will face stiff opposition tonight when it meets Manistique on the latter's floor. This is the first game played with Manistique since 1928 when Manistique eked out a victory by a narrow margin.

Coach Peterson has been sending his team through spirited practice sessions during the last few days, in anticipation for this game. A revamped lineup will take the floor, including Boyer and Cavill at forwards, Schramm at center, with Peterson and Oberg at the guards. This lineup has shown more scoring punch which has been lacking in the last two games.

Coach Peterson is of the opinion that their last game with Nahma before the holidays was just a case of being off form for that particular evening and he believes that they will give a better account of themselves tonight.

EASTERN STARS CONQUER WEST

Plenty of Action Seen in Final Frame of Charity Game

BY RUSSELL J. NEWLAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Kezar Stadium, San Francisco, Jan. 1 (AP)—East conquered West on the football field today with a 19 to 3 score that turned the final quarter of the eleventh intersectional charity classic into a western rout.

On the short end of a 3 to 0 count just after the final period opened, the finest collection of collegiate stars assembled under the eastern banner in years snatched at a fumble and intercepted two passes to convert the breaks into touchdowns while nearly 60,000 fans cheered them on.

Lam's Fumble Recovered

The score was the most one-sided since 1928, when an eastern team won by a 20 to 0 margin.

The first eastern touchdown followed recovery of a fumble made by little Bill "Kayo" Lam, University of Colorado halfback. It turned the tide of battle and set the stage for reversal of what was leading up to an upset victory for the West.

Charlie Waslicek, big tackle from Colgate, fell on the ball on the West's 43-yard line. Getting up full power, the East smashed goalward under impetus furnished by Ed Smith, New York university halfback; Paul Pauk, of Princeton, right half, and Don Irwin line crusher from Colgate and fullback.

Ed Smith tossed a short pass to Pauk who ran seven yards for the first score which changed the lead. Irwin converted the extra tally with place kick.

Intercept Two Passes

The next two touchdowns, made in quick succession, saw passes by Bill Wallace, Rice Institute halfback, intercepted. Irwin snagged the first one, to give the East possession on the West's 26. Ed Smith ripped off 12 yards and Irwin 11 on successive line drives and Irwin dove over the line on the last try, a three-yard gain.

Receiving the kickoff, the West tried to pass on its own 10-yard line. This time Gomer Jones, Ohio State center, bobbed up, nabbed the oval and boomed around the West's right end for approximately 15 yards and the final touchdown.

Interesting Book Received By Club

Newberry—The chairman of the conservation committee for the Newberry Business and Professional Woman's club has received a copy of "Conservation Handbook for Women's Clubs," edited by Mrs. Audrey C. DeWitt of the educational department of the state commission. Mrs. DeWitt was the guest of the local club a short time ago, presenting a talk, illustrated by a film, "Michigan Wild Flowers." The handbook, prepared especially for Michigan women, was discussed at that time.

The meaning and importance of conservation take up the first part of the booklet, special information of value to committees, and plans for meetings complete the publication. These are quite complete with lists of film and talks which can be obtained from the commission, and a special list of references for each topic. The first illustration in the booklet is an excellent picture of the Tahquamenon falls.

Suggestions for club projects offer: The Preservation of Michigan Wild Flowers through: Public School Art Classes, A Wild Flower Floretum, Private Wild Flower Sanctuaries, Booklets and Folders of Michigan Wild Flowers and School Gardens. Other projects are: Winter Feeding of Birds, Roadside Improvement Demonstration, Community Forests, Fire Prevention Work, Historical Markers, Bulletin Board and support of public park programs.

Michigan Poets Now Organized

Newberry—Michigan poets have organized. Such an organization has already been effected in most of the other states of the Union but the writers and lovers of verse in Michigan have only recently managed to complete their own organization. An announcement from Clifford Allen of Cadillac, temporary secretary, names the officers selected at the election held by mail. Carl Edwin Burklund of the English department, University of Michigan, is president; Emil O. Tolonen of Detroit, formerly of the Copper Country, mathematician for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, translator and philosopher, is secretary-treasurer. Chairman of arrangements, Clarence Milligan, lawyer and writer, 901 Majestic building, Detroit, and chairman of extension, Clifford Allen, Torb building, Cadillac, complete the organization.

Not only are practicing poets invited to join, but teachers of literature in schools and colleges, members of literary clubs and all those actively interested in poetry may become members by writing to Mr Tolonen, 4524 Avery avenue, Detroit. Mr. Allen has charge of mutual criticism circuits, local units and student units. It is hoped that one of the latter or a combination of the last two named can be organized in each community of any size throughout the state.

STUDY CLUB

Newberry—A regular meeting of the Newberry Study club will be held on January 4. This meeting will be the annual luncheon, this year held at the home of Mrs. A. H. Sherman and followed by the election of officers at the home of Mrs. F. P. Bohn.

Roll call will be answered by a news subject assigned. Discussion of the program for the coming year will be a feature of the meeting.

MANY CELEBRATED

The New Year was well celebrated in this locality. Dozens of parties, from small family gatherings to large events, marked the passing of 1935 and the incoming of 1936. Some of the parties were of a progressive nature with visits to the homes of friends, an hour or so at the Republican community dance, a stop at a restaurant for dinner or a lunch, and then on through the rounds until late into the night. Sergt. Fred Kune reports little disorder and no arrests.

NEWBERRY LOCALS

Mrs. Ed Stensard and daughter Mary Catherine of Michigamme spent New Year's Day here as the guest of her brother, J. P. Rahilly.

Rev. F. Merle Townsend entertained his Sunday school class of boys at a six o'clock dinner at the pasronage on New Year's night.

Lieut. H. W. Guteskunst and Lieut. and Mrs. Koos left Wednesday night for downstate, Detroit and Grass Lake, on ten day leaves of absence.

Dr. George Swanson and family spent New Year's Day in Vassar with his brother.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Zagelmeier left on Wednesday to spend a few days with friends in Detroit.

The water and light department removed the seven ton Christmas tree base from Newberry avenue on Thursday. At least when this news letter was mailed they were attempting to remove it and were meeting some difficulty in breaking the large mass of concrete loose from the pavement. The colored lights were also removed from the street lamps and Newverry avenue returned to its normal appearance after the Christmas holidays.

Lou Ambers Meets Frankie Klick This Evening

GARDENS HOST TO CONTENDERS

Persistent Rivals for Canzoneri's Crown in Ten Rounder

New York, Jan. 2 (AP)—Two persistent rivals for Tony's Canzoneri's lightweight crown clash in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night for the privilege of meeting the champion in a title contest.

They are Lou Ambers, the Herkimer, N. Y., hurricane and Frankie Klick, the California veteran, who is stepping along at the same speedy clip he set when he first appeared on the big time years ago.

The pair will fight the ten round feature of an all-lightweight and Canzoneri has promised to meet the winner in the spring.

It will be Ambers' first Garden appearance since his jaw was broken in a fight with Fritizi Zivic six months ago. He spent weeks in a hospital before returning to the ring against three warm-up opponents. He won all three bouts so easily, his managers didn't hesitate to sign for Klick.

The betting is 6 to 5 that Klick will drop his first Garden decision in seven starts. The Californian always has regarded the Garden as his lucky spot. On his last appearance there he came back after being knocked down twice to defeat the sturdy Al Roth.

If Klick beats Ambers and gets the Canzoneri match it will be the fifth time he has opposed the little Italian. Canzoneri won all four bouts, but one in Washington was so close newspapers roundly panned the decision the next day.

Joe Anderson Wins By Knockout Route

Jackson, Mich., Jan. 2—Joe Anderson, Gladstone's hard hitting middleweight, made his first start for the Jimmy Brady stable here last night, knocking out Billy Porter, fast colored star from Gary, Ind., in the fourth round of the main bout. Anderson had his man out in the third but the bell saved Porter. Joe dropped him twice in the fourth to score a knockout.

ALBION COACH RESIGNS POST

Demand for Winners Is Fatal to "Bud" Daugherty

Albion, Mich., Jan. 2 (AP)—The demands of alumni for winning teams impelled R. R. (Bud) Daugherty, director of athletics and head coach at Albion college, to resign today. The resignation will become effective in September.

Daugherty, who had been at Albion since 1927, said he did not know who will succeed him. He has not yet announced whether he has another position in sight.

The 1928 Albion football team that Daugherty coached finished a perfect season without a tie or defeat. He has had four runner-up teams for the M. I. A. A. grid championship; won the basketball title once and tied it once, and has turned out four championship track teams.

Townsend Plan—Would It Work?

ty and town governments.

A man and his wife each over 60 will both receive $200 a month—$400 to the family.

Counties Would Distribute Money

The money would be paid, according to Dr. Townsend, in the following manner: The Federal government would send to each state $200 for each person over 60 in its population. The state would send $200 to each county for all of its aged.

But where would the money come from? From a tax on the nation. Dr. Townsend proposes what he calls a transactions tax. The tax would be 2 percent. This has been fixed on because the doctor figures that the total business transactions of the nation in a year—running around $900,000,000,000—would yield a sum sufficient to pay the bill.

Every business operation is a transaction. The miller buys wheat. He pays 2 percent on the purchase. The baker pays 2 percent when he buys the flour. The consumer pays 2 percent when he buys bread. Buy a theater ticket, a railroad ticket, a movie seat, a share of stock—these are transactions and would incur the 2 percent tax.

This is a statement of the plan. Dr. Townsend's great argument for his plan is that it would end hard times. His explanation is very simple. These 8,000,000 old people with $1,500,000,000 a month to spend, would have to spend it. The money would flow right back into business, increasing the purchasing power of the nation and stimulating every business.

Inflation Isn't Involved

The Townsendites insist that the plan will not create inflation. That is correct. No fresh purchasing power will be created, hence there will be no inflation. But at the same time they insist that fresh purchasing power will be created. Their theory is that they will take money by taxes from those who would not spend it and give it to old people who would spend it and thus create active purchasing power.

Will it give us fresh purchasing power? Let us apply the argument to a small number of people. Suppose there are ten persons who have wages of $100 a month each. That makes $1000 a month. That is their purchasing power. Now these 10 people are taxed $10 each in order to pay a pension to an eleventh person of $100 a month. It is clear that the eleventh person now has $100 to spend which he didn't have before. But what of the other ten? After each has paid a tax of $10 each has but $90 to spend. The ten have $900, the eleventh has $100—a total of $1000 which is precisely what there was before the tax was laid.

The $19,000,000,000 collected in taxes will be added to the cost of what the people buy. Therefore they will buy $19,000,000,000 less. While the pensioners will buy $19,000,000,000 more. The two items will cancel each other. There will be no increase in purchasing power.

Tax Is Compounded

What is the purchasing power of the people? Last year it was $49,000,000,000. Out of that sum was taken in taxes $9,500,000,000 by all taxing units. Add to that another $19,000,000,000 and you will substract from the purchasing power of the people $28,500,000000. Those who receive the taxes will spend them. Those who pay the taxes will have that much less to spend. These high taxes will take more than half of the nation's money income—$28,500,000,000 out of $49,000,000,000—leaving only $20,500,000,000 for those who produce the wealth.

The tax, as already explained, will be a transactions tax, not a retail sales tax. The difference is enormous. I buy a suit for $30 and pay a tax of 2 percent. I sell it to you for $40 and you pay 2 percent. The retail price of the suit is $40. But the two transactions total $70. Of course I pass the 2 percent I pay on to you. You pay that plus the 2 percent you pay when you buy the suit. You really pay more than 2 percent. It is of course far worse than that. Because the taxes start with the wool on the sheep. The shipper buys from the farmer and pays 2 percent. The yarn maker buys from the shipper. The fabric maker buys from the yarn maker. The suit manufacturer buys from the cloth maker and so on. And there is a 2 percent tax on each transaction. The total of the transactions on a $40 suit may be $250. All these taxes are paid by the final customer to the retailer. The buyer of a $40 suit might well pay 2 percent on $250 and not 2 percent on $40.

Most of the taxes in the end would be paid by customers at retail. And this means the great bulk would be paid by the wage earners of the nation. You could not pile $19,000,000,000 onto the price of goods without impoverishing the workers of the nation. Of course, the pensioners would have the money to spend which had been taken from the workers. But it must be clear that the workers — the producers — must have the money before it can be taken from the pensioners. And if you impoverish them the whole economic system will collapse—the pensions scheme along with it.

AMERKS DOWN RANGERS, 6-3

Furious Battle in New York Draws Crowd of 14,000

New York, Jan. 2 (AP)—The New York Americans tonight downed their Madison Square Garden co-tenants, the New York Rangers, 6-3 in a furious National Hockey game that left 14,000 patrons hoarse.

The Rangers went into the second period leading 2-1 shortly after that the Amerks took matters into their own hands and turned the encounter into something of a route.

The Rangers scored first, Dillon snapping one after less than five minutes of play, assisted by Patrick and Murdoch. The Americans came back to tie it up on a goal by Chapman three minutes later but the Rangers took the lead again just three seconds before the period closed. Bun Cook scoring after some clever pass work with Bill Cook and Boucher.

Manager Red Dutton brought his team on even terms in the second period, combining with Wiseman and Schriner for the tally but Bill Cook took a pass from Boucher to regain the lead for the Rangers. From them on the Americans dominated the show.

Oliver took a pass from Stewart to knot the count after 11:39 of the second frame, then Chapman rifled one in a couple minutes later to give the Amerks the lead. In the final period Jerwa made a score unassisted. Schriner completed the evening's work by whipping in the disc after it had been passed to him by Chapman.

HORNED FROGS DEFEAT TIGERS

Texas Christian Noses Out LSU in Peculiar Grid Tilt, 3-2

By KENNETH GREGORY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Tulane Stadium, New Orleans, Jan. 1 (AP)—An accurate place kick by Taldon Manton, held steadily by Sam Baugh, provided the victory margin of a battle won in the rain this afternoon by the Horned Frogs of Texas Christian university over the Tigers of Louisiana State by the score of 3 to 2.

A record breaking turn out of 35,000 for 1936's Sugar bowl, festival packed the stadium as the Texans engineered a victory over the southeastern conference gridiron champions.

Tigers Obtain Lead

Louisiana took an early lead midway in the second period when Baugh, Texas Christian's all-around star, dropped back to pass after a valiant goal line defense and stepped over the end zone, automatically giving the Tigers a safety.

Early in the second period Louisiana State threatened with a drive that carried to the Frogs' one-foot line, featuring line smashes by Bill Crass, Fatherree and Mickal.

The Frogs warded off the attack short of the goal line. Baugh dropped back in punt formation, attempting a pass and stepped behind his end zone.

Texas Christian then kicked to Louisiana's 40, where Ernie Seago fumbled and Willie Walls recovered for the Texans. On the next play Jim Lawrence, hard driving Frog halfback, crossed up the Tiger defense by tossing a forward to Walls that was good for 25 yards to the Tiger 16.

Three line smashes were checked by the Bengals, and, on fourth down, Baugh kneeled down on the 26-yard line to hold the ball which Manton booted squarely over the goal posts for what proved the winning points.

Sterling Line Play

Aside from the actual scoring, Louisiana State lacked the necessary power on two occasions as the Tiger machine rolled to the two-yard line, only to be stopped by the Frogs' powerful line, featuring the play of Darrell Lester, all-American, and Tracy Kellow, 167-pound guard, who was the defensive star of the game.

The Louisiana eleven also displayed defensive brilliance in halting a Texas drive, coming after a sparkling 44-yard run by Baugh to the Tigers' two-yard line early in the fourth period.

Four line plays lost nine yards and, with two minutes to play, Mickal kicked to midfield.

Short History of Michigan

In December, 1835, a tall, solid man with his long chin buried in his upstanding white collar, his deeply set eyes flashing defiance from each side of his long aquiline nose, stood on the floor of the United States senate.

"Mr. President!"

"Mr. Benton," came the reply from pudgy Martin VanBuren, the president of the senate by virtue of his office of vice president.

Thus began the speech of the senator from Missouri on Michigan's behalf. He was attempting to have Michigan's petition for statehood removed from the general discussion where it was gathering more opposition each time it was referred to. Senator Benton's plan and motion would send the consideration of the document to a select committee—of which he expected to be the chairman. The plan failed. Vociferous opposition blocked the move as denunciations re-echoed from the galleries. The tide could not even be stemmed by a motion to refer the whole matter to the committee on territories which made another defeat for Benton.

Thomas Hart Benton must be honored by Michigan for his efforts in its cause, but his double defeat is but an indication of his position. He was an independent, who could not trade support because of his uncertain attitude on policies. Many times had tought administration issues only to join with Jackson against the United States bank and the industrial east. He had also advocated a land policy which would have opened the west too rapidly for the necessary adjustment in the eastern labor market.

It must have been a welcome sight to the harassed French garrison at Detroit in May, 1712, when their Indian allies swarmed into the fort to defend it against the invading Foxes and their allied tribes. The defenders at once began the construction of a blockhouse overlooking the enemy defenses.

Stanford's Third Try Is Successful; Beats Southern Methodist

BY BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Rose Bowl, Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 1. (AP)—Stanford's lighthearted football players were serious today as they defeated Southern Methodist university, 7 to 0, before a crowd of more than 85,000.

The only touchdown of the game was scored when the first period was about three quarters over, Bill Paulman, Stanford's sophomore quarterback, slanting off his own left tackle from the two-yard line.

Oddly enough the winning touchdown was made possible by a forward pass, a weapon which Stanford was not supposed to know much about. The railbirds had thought Southern Methodist would do the throwing and Stanford the running. As it turned out, a 22-yard pass sent Stanford deep in Southern Methodist territory and led to the score.

Crowd Jams Bowl

The big bowl was jammed to the hilt with excited humanity, partisan Texans, equally partisan Californians and other thousands who just came for the ride.

Eight members of the Stanford team today had played two previous losing games in the Rose bowl, and they were determined to show tha football worm could turn and would not be the same on the other side.

The game was not as exciting as had been forecast, Stanford picked up a first period touchdown and did not do much thereafter while Southern Methodist never could muster a consistent passing attack, although one smart forward followed by two laterals gave the visitors the ball on Stanford's five yard line. This golden opportunity went glimmering when a fumble cost the attacking team possession of the ball.

Little Excitement in Game

Both teams have played better ball during the season than they did today. At times the contest threatened to become dull and never was there the sustained excitement some other New Year's day classics have produced.

After getting behind early in the day, the Mustangs threw the ball wildly, but only a few short passes connected. Few long ones were attempted and none made good although one failed by a whisper when Bobby Grayson rushed over and knocked it down.

Stanford, after getting out in front, tried to increase its lead by passing when the Texans showed they were able to stop the running attack. But a Mustang almost intercepted a pass, with a clear field ahead to a touchdown, so the Redskins quickly changed their tactics and held tenaciously to what they had.

Paulman was the offensive and defensive star of the Stanford backfield. The young quarterback played a sensational game on defense, was alert throughout and had a much better day on the whole than his all-American teammate, Bobby Grayson.

Stanford struck while the football iron was hot and kept Southern Methodist away from the goal, the Indians greatest strength today undoubtedly being their ability to rush the passers. Once set, the Mustangs might have passed to two or more touchdowns but the Redskins led by the fast Topping, never would let them get in position to throw as they had thrown early in the season.

The slippery Wilson gave the Texans their first chance to cheer at the very start of the game when he took Paulman's first punt of the day on the S. M. U. 45-yard line and dashed to Stanford's 27-yard stripe. Nothing came of this effort, however, for the drive was stopped when Jim Coffis intercepted a Methodist pass on his own 12-yard line.

Mustangs in Hole Early

A smart quick kick by Paulman put the visitors deep in the hole a few minutes later. The ball was grounded on S. M. U.'s 10-yard line and, when Bob Finley kicked back, Coffis slipped past two of the opposition and sprinted 16 yards to S. M. U.'s 39-yard line.

Grayson gave the ball to Paulman who tossed a forward pass to Coffis on the 19-yard line. Grayson picked up six yards on a desperate plunge and "Iron Man" Wetzel, stalwart Southern Methodist guard, was assisted from the field. Grayson failed to gain, but on the next play went to the two-yard line. Grayson lost a half yard but Paulman went across the goal line on the next play, which caught the southerners napping. Everybody but Paulman went to the right while Bill slanted to the left and after running more than five yards found himself squarely in pay dirt.

Moscrip kicked the goal and Southern Methodist was behind for the first time all season.

SMU FANS ARE CRYING BLUES

Every Regular Mustang To Be Graduated Next Spring

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 2 (AP)—Football fans of Southern Methodist university tonight gloomily contemplated graduation day—an occasion that will riddle the ranks of the famed Flying Circus.

The entire first string line and most of the backfield completed S. M. U. football days in the 7-0 Rose Bowl defeat at the hands of Stanford yesterday. Only five experienced reserves will be on hand next season.

Coach Matty Bell must turn to the freshman squad and the reserve lists in his hunt for successors to Bobby Wilson, Harry Shuford and Shelly Burt, the three wild horses of the Mustang backfield.

Gone will be the fast first-string line—Bill Tipton, left end; Truman Spain, left tackle; J. C. (Ironman) Wetzel, left guard; Arthur Johnson, center; Billy Stamps, right guard; Maurice Orr, right tackle, and Maco Stewart right end.

Reserves who played against Stanford to complete their collegiate gridiron careers are Jackrabbit Smith, fleet-footed ball carrier, and Buster Raborn, center who alternated with Johnson Charley Baker, a guard who saw considerable action late in the season as he replaced the injured Wetzel, also played his last game

-:- Munising News -:-

Recreation Program Is Well Underway

Munising.—The Works Progress Administration recreational program is well underway, with a number of activities going along as well as can be expected, due to weather conditions.

The ski hill is almost completed, the only work remaining is the erecting of a scaffold. The change in weather, from extreme cold to a slushy rain in the last few days, impedes this work to an extent, but it is expected that with the coming of proper weather the hill can be made ready for use in a short time. The skiing club has been organized and members, under the captainship of John Fuller meet at the high school weekly. More boys are urged to join the club, as it is an operation formed club, as it is an organization formed for everyone interested. The date and time of the next meeting will be announced later.

A project that is causing much interest and one that Munising has never had the advantage of having, although there are a great number of surrounding hills, is the toboggan slide. This is being put in condition now at the municipal playgrounds, and like the ski hill, suitable weather will be a great help in making it ready for use.

The skating rink has been in operation for a week and a half, with the advantage of competent supervisors to aid beginners. The rink is located in the old city ball park.

Alger county recreation projects are not only of an out door nature. A radio club, with an instructor, has been formed at Au Train and more projects will be started in the near future, not only there but also in Grand Marais and Forest Lake.

Many of the activities in connection with the National Youth Administration project and according to George A. Grenholm, WPA recreational manager in this county, when this set-up is really underway about 12 young people may be used in connection with the recreational activities.

JOSEPH VOIDA

Munising.—Interment of the body of Joseph Voida, who met with his death at a camp owned and operated by Harry Wynn was made in the Maple Grove cemetery yesterday. Investigations have been made as to the reason for his death, authorities fearing that death came as the result of a blow. Physicians finally decided that Voida's death resulted from an old ailment, from which he had been suffering. Services were held from the funeral home.

SKI CLUBS

Munising.—Judge James Hoskings, about three weeks ago wrote letters to all superintendents of schools in Alger county, asking cooperation in forming skiing clubs for boys under the age of 18.

His plan was to form these clubs in the schools, with the consent of the superintendents and to let the boys select captains, meeting place, rewards and rules themselves. He offered $35 money value in prizes as an incentive, with each school club selecting the boy contestant who deserved the prize at the end of the season.

To date Mr. Hoskings has received no word of the acceptance of his plan by any school but Grand Marais and this club has been formed. He urged yesterday that superintendents get in touch with him so the clubs may be formed at once.

ALBERT SCHNEIDER

Munising.—The body of Albert G. Schnieder, age 34, proprietor of the Home Town Bakery in Munising was taken to Milwaukee yesterday and will be cremated today. Funeral services were held at the home of the Schnieder family on East Superior street yesterday with Rev. W. G. Prout of the Methodist Episcopal church officiating.

Mr. Schnieder was born on April 26, 1901 in Bolton, Mich., and came to Munising in June, 1933. He has since owned and operated the Home Town Bakery on East Superior street. He had been ill since about Dec. 15 and was believed to be on the way to recovery when he was taken by death. Death was caused by pneumonia. Mr. Schnieder is survived by his wife and a son, George.

Funeral services were also held in Milwaukee today.

HENRY VAN HALA

Munising.—Funeral services for Henry Van Hala, who died as the result of an accident at Trenary were held today. He is survived by his wife, six sons and four daughters. Mr. Van Hala was born in Finland in 1865 and since he came to the United States has been a resident of Trenary.

CITY OPPOSES RAIL POOLING

Utilities Collections in Escanaba Increase $12,000 in 1935

As a result of action taken by the city council last night, the city of Escanaba will line up with other communities, business firms and labor organizations in opposing the proposed pooling of ore trackage as asked by the Milwaukee road, and the abandonment of trackage rights over the E. & L. S. railway from Channing to Escanaba for hauling iron ore. A hearing on the application of the Milwaukee road to abandon its E. & L. S. trackage, a distance of about 63.5 miles, has been requested, to be held at Escanaba, and the city will ask to be allowed representation at this hearing. Similar action is to be suggested for the county board of supervisors.

Final approval was given by the city council last night on a bid of Barkus, Kindred & Co. for handling $29,500 worth of municipal waterworks plant purchase refunding bonds. The firm bid par with accured interest, and the bonds will bear four per cent interest, resulting in an appreciable saving in interest costs to the city. Another issue of $53,000 refunding bonds was previously approved.

City Manager T. F. Kessler read from a report of the city utilities department, showing collection of utility accounts increased $12,000 in 1935 over 1934.

A petition bearing 56 signatures, asking that a liquor license be approved for George Williams at the Metropolitan hotel, 1123 First avenue north, was presented for the consideration of the council last night.

A special meeting of the council will be held Monday night to act on other current matters which require attention.

RAIL PENSION STAFF ASKED

$46,500,00 to Pay 1200 Employes Will Be Sought

BY PAUL MAY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 2—The session of congress which convenes January 3, will be asked to appropriate $46,500,000 to provide a working staff of 1200 employes to administer the rail pension act, officials of the railroad retirement board revealed today.

The board will attempt to begin collection of payroll taxes on carriers from March 1, despite the question of constitutionality of the pension act, which is now hampering the board's activities, it was said.

Payroll taxes, under terms of the act, are to be assessed beginning March 1, although the pensions provided by the act do not become effective until next June 1.

These taxes are expected to raise $135,000,000 the first year. The rate is three and a half percent on the wages of all employes up to $300 a month, and on the payrolls of the railroads.

Operating on borrowed funds because it had no appropriation of its own, the retirement board revealed today it has circularized all railroad employes as the first step toward putting into effect the federal railroad pensin system.

Potato Stamps Draw Interest In Delta County

Because of its position as a leading potato producing area, Delta county will undoubtedly see much of the forthcoming potato tax stamp in its multiple denominations, and a new field will be opened up to the many local stamp collectors.

Advance information on the potatol tax stamp has been received by the Rev. F. A. Seifert of Daggett, a philatelist who keeps in close touch with all stamp matters, and his notations will be of interest to many readers of the Press.

There are two classes of potato stamps, one for tax paid and the other for tax exemptions on tubers. There have already been printed by the U. S. Bureau of Engraving and Printing 42,000,000 tax paid stamps and 1,800,000 tax exempt stamps. They are put up in booklets of five different varieties—12c, 24c, 48c, 96c, and $1.92, respectively.

In the tax paid set, there are 13 different denominations for one pound to 200 pounds, while the tax exempt set consists of 12 different stamps from one to 165 pounds. Each tax paid stamp is of a different color, but all have the same design—a woman's head. The tax exempt stamps are all dark gray and the design is a geometrical background similar to the postage due stamps. The sale of these stamps at local postoffice is expected to greatly increase the annual revenue.

"The Star Spangled Banner" was legally made the national anthem of the United States in March. 1931.

MEDICAL MARTYR

A few globules of spinal meningitis culture flipped into her eye by a wriggling guinea pig which she was injecting with the deadly substance cost the life of Miss Anna Pabst (above), 39-year-old bacteriologist of the U. S. Public Health Service in Washington. She was working on development of a protective serum.

NEW YEAR HAS NOISY WELCOME

Celebrating Orderly in Escanaba; Few Car Accidents

Scores of noisy parties, both public and private, played a part in Escanaba's welcome to the new year Tuesday night. There was much merry-making, but crowds in public gatherings were unusually orderly, and there were no arrests.

With the "lid off" on drinking regulations, due to a suspension of closing hours, it is believed that more liquor was consumed here than any New Year's eve since before prohibition, an estimate of the drinking bill for the evening running into several thousand.

Due to the number of dances in progress outside of the city limits, motor traffic was heavy all night, but there were few accidents and those reported were of cars skidding off the highway because of slippery pavements.

DINNER JAN. 8 IS BIG EVENT

Delta County Democrats Plan for Jackson Day Jubilee

Arthur F. Sawyer, president of the Delta County Young Democratic Club, announced Thursday that already 200 tickets had been given out for the Jackson Day dinner to be held at the Delta hotel at 6:30 p. m. Jan. 8, and that the success of the dinner was assured. As the space for accomodating diners at the hotel is limited, those who are unable to secure reservations for the dinner are invited to come for the program, which will follow immediately after the dinner. Arrangements will be made for accomodating all those who come to hear the speakers. Municipal Judge Needham Fagen and Mrs. F. W. Schmidt will give addresses, and the radio talk of President Roosevelt will be received at the gathering.

On the reception committee for the event will be:

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Jacobson, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Titus, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Laviolette, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnston and Mr. and Mrs. Patterson.

James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National committee announced that reports already received at headquarters in Washington indicate 3,000 Jackson Day dinners on the night of January 8th, with upward of 200,000 friends of the party sitting down together.

The chairman notified Mr. Sawyer, that in his opinion that night will see such rallying of Democratic strength as has never been seen except on election day. In his message to Mr. Sawyer, the national chairman stressed the fact that these dinners were an opportunity to do so many nice things all at once that it should not be missed. First, a good dinner in the midst of your friends and neighbors; Second, a pledge of party loyalty, the importance of which cannot be too greatly stressed; Third, an opportunity to make a small contribution to the war chest of the 1936 Democratic presidential campaign which in the aggregate will make a sum large enough to permit victory next November; Fourth, to hear a personal message from the leader of the party whose radio personality would have made him the number one attraction over the ether if he were only a private citizen.

HIGHWAYS BAD FOR MOTORISTS

Wet Snow Thursday Adds to Hazards; Two Hurt

Despite slippary pavements and heavy traffic, there were but few accidents on New Year's eve and New Year's day at Escanaba. Only one collision was reported to the police department for New Year's eve, and that was at 4 a. m. Jan. 1. Automobiles driven by Herbert Westlund and George Vandenbush, both of Rock, collided at the corner of Second avenue north and 14th street when both reached the intersection at the same time and were unable to stop because of the slippery condition of the street. No one was hurt seriously.

Nick Kolinski of the Wells boarding house received a broken right arm and bruises at 1:40 a. m. Thursday when he stepped or ran out on the highway to flag a ride with Miss Margaret Nelson, chemical plant location, who was driving through Wells near the gasoline service station. He was taken to St. Francis hospital.

At 9:30 p. m. Dec. 31, cars driven by Edmond Vigneau of Niagara and Lawrence Lafave, Hermansville, were involved in an accident near Portage Creek on US-2. In attempting to pass the other car, Vigneau's automobile skidded and swung the Hermansville car into the ditch. Only minor injuries were reported.

Another accident at Portage creek was at 4:30 p. m. Jan. 1, when cars driven by Gilbert Byrns of Escanaba and Lieut. Kenneth L. Boggs of CCC Camp Sagola skidded together. Mrs. Boggs, riding with her husband, received a scalp wound, and was brought to St. Francis hospital. The others received only minor bruises. With Byrns were Ed Farrell, Stanley Thompson and Charles Byrns. Both cars were badly damaged.

The three highway accidents were investigated by the Delta county sheriff's department.

Wet snow which fell Thursday added to the hazards of motoring, and called for extra caution on the part of drivers.
